1513. + CONSUMER PROTECTION FOR DEFAULT BY SCHEDULED AIR CARRIERS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1371; 49 USC 1372; 49 USC 1381

CFR Citation: None

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Transamerica petitioned the CAB to investigate ways to protect consumers against service defaults by scheduled air carriers in domestic, overseas, and foreign air transportation. Transamerica suggested that the Board condition the award of operating authority to perform direct carrier scheduled service on air carriers developing a default protection plan. For foreign air travel, it suggested that the obligation be limited to outbound flights. The petitioner argued that prompt action is necessary in order to ensure continued public confidence in scheduled air service and to protect passengers from unnecessary financial hardship. DOT is considering what action should be taken on the petition.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1371; 49 USC 1372; 49 USC 1381

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This petition, filed by Mr. Theodore Harris, addresses the problem of airline passengers whose airline goes bankrupt after they bought their ticket but before they use it. The petitioner asks that airlines be required to protect such "unearned revenue" by escrowing it or by posting a bond in an amount equal to 150% of average unearned revenue. Exemptions could be granted to airlines which file evidence of ticket insurance plans or which enter into agreements with other airlines to accept the tickets of bankrupt carriers. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1373; 49 USC 1386

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 372

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The reference to tariffs in the rule governing Overseas Military Personnel Charters (OMPC) has become obsolete, at least with respect to domestic air transportation. The CAB was considering whether to eliminate the tariff requirement for all OMPC's and replace it with consumer-protection requirements similar to those in its Public Charter rule in Part 380. This proposal is still being considered by DOT.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1381

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 399

Abstract: Donald L. Pevsner petitioned the CAB to institute a rulemaking proceeding to ban use of the term "direct flight" because it is deceptive, and to declare use of the term to be a prima facie violation of section 411 of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958. 1518. CARGO RATE CHANGES ON 30 DAYS' NOTICE

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1373

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 221.160

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule would amend regulations to allow cargo tariffs which are within the zones established under 14 CFR 399.41 to be filed on 30 days' notice. There are two alternatives: either maintain the status quo (60 days' notice) or change cargo tariff filing regulations to 30 days' notice to be consistent with passenger tariff-filing requirements. Standardization of the regulatory tariff-filing requirements for both cargo and passenger tariffs would benefit the industry.

Abstract: The Civil Aeronautics Board was an independent agency; its rules have now been transferred to DOT, a cabinet department. This review will identify any CAB rules which are not consistent with Department or Administration regulatory criteria, such as those that impose an unnecessarily high cost or those with paperwork

Abstract: The DOT rules cited above state that any price stated for air transportation, a tour or a tour component must be the entire price for that transportation, tour or component. In this petition, Mr. Donald Pevsner complains that some tour operators advertise prices which do not include additional features which must be purchased and which cost extra. He asks that the rules be amended to state that such additional features may only be priced separately if they may be purchased separately, i.e., if they are optional rather than mandatory.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 98-575; PL 100-656, Sec 15(c) to 16 Commercial Space Launch Act

CFR Citation: None

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Persons authorized to conduct commercial launch activities by a license issued by the Office of Commercial Space Transportation (OCST) are required to obtain liability insurance or demonstrate financial responsibility, in amounts and on terms prescribed by OCST, to protect against third-party or government property damage claims resulting from the licensed activities. In addition, persons engaged in commercial launch operations must provide proof of financial responsibility, or offer other assurances, adequate to protect the Government when its property or personnel are involved in such operations. The rulemaking sets out the criteria pursuant to which OCST would set the appropriate levels and terms of insurance and financial responsibility required to be carried by persons subject to its authority.

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 23

Abstract: The Department is reviewing its regulation establishing a minority business enterprise (MBE) program in its financial assistance programs (49 CFR Part 23). This regulation has been controversial, is of interest to most DOT grant recipients and contractors, and affects the operations of all DOT financial assistance programs. Section 106(c) of the Surface Transportation and Uniform Relocation Assistance Act of 1987 (STURAA) extended and modified the program as applied to FHWA and UMTA; similar legislation applied the same requirements to the FAA. The Department issued a final rule to make the STURAA changes in October 1987; a similar rule for FAA programs was published in May 1988. The Department intends subsequently to issue an NPRM that would propose further changes in the regulation.

Abstract: The proposed regulation would set forth requirements and procedures for all State Departments of Transportation (DOTs) equal employment opportunity compliance programs. It would also consolidate FHWA, FRA, and UMTA responsibilities in this area. This proposed regulation is significant because it would affect the equal opportunity employment programs of all State transportation agencies. It is needed because OST, FHWA, FRA, and UMTA each have responsibility for implementing the equal employment opportunity programs of State DOTs. This proposed rule would assure full coordination among these departmental elements, reduce the burden on the recipients, simplify reporting requirements, and eliminate duplication of effort.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 29 USC 794

Abstract: This regulation would implement the 1978 amendments to section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 which made its prohibition of discrimination on the ground of handicap applicable to the directly conducted programs of Federal agencies as well as to their financial assistance programs. The rule would apply to DOT facilities, personnel practices, and regulatory programs. It would be based on a model rule developed by the Department of Justice. The rule would also apply to DOT activities and functions transferred from the Civil Aeronautics Board after that agency's "sunset." A CAB NPRM that was being developed on this subject will be subsumed in this project. A draft NPRM is now being reviewed by the Department of Justice.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 794; Section 404(a) of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958, as amended

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 27; 14 CFR 382

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, January 30, 1987.

Abstract: The Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) had a regulation providing protection of the rights of handicapped air travellers. Based on recent Congressional action, DOT began enforcing this regulation on January 1, 1985. The Supreme Court's decision in U.S. Department of Transportation v. Paralyzed Veterans of America held that Section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 does not apply to nonsubsidized air carriers. This decision left the existing regulation intact. The Air Carrier Access Act of 1986 directed DOT to publish new regulations prohibiting disability-based discrimination in air travel. The Department will use comments received in response to its August 1986 information notice on issues affecting blind passengers as part of the record for this rulemaking. The Department convened an advisory committee to pursue the rulemaking through a negotiated process. The negotiations have concluded and an NPRM has been published.

1527. + ELECTRONIC FILING OF TARIFFS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1373

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 221

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This project is examining whether conversion from a paper document system to a computerized system of filing and monitoring air carrier tariffs can reduce paper flow, speed up processing, and allow the industry to utilize computer and technology to communicate with DOT. The alternative is to maintain the current paper tariffs system. Potential savings to the industry may be greater than to the Government, since airlines already utilize automated fare and rate systems. In addition, airlines may be able to implement changes faster, thus responding more quickly to market conditions, and may be less burdened with the cost of producing and transmitting paper documents. The Department may reduce paper flow, experience savings in processing time and staffing, and improve the accuracy and control of tariff data. In order to assure that users' needs are taken into consideration and that the private sector is involved to the maximum extent in the design, implementation, and operation of such a system, the Department established an Advisory Committee to make continuing recommendations on technical, operational, and policy objectives of the electronic tariff system.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The CAB proposed new charter rules for direct and indirect air carriers. The proposed rules retain the financial protections of existing rules for direct air carriers while eliminating rules restricting the types of groups (such as "affinity" or "single-entity") to whom charters may be sold. The proposal would also retain a security instrument and depository system for indirect air carriers, along with contract rules for public protection. The proposal also highlights depository bank and travel agent responsibilities in handling passenger funds. The proposal replaces one made earlier. DOT is considering what action should be taken. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 398, (Revision)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The essential Air Service (EAS) program provides subsidies to assist small communities in receiving essential air service. The 1989 fiscal year appropriation for EAS is $25 million. Current spending is at levels projected to require $31.6 million for FY 1989. A $6.6 million projected reduction in spending is needed to be within the FY 1989 appropriation. Four alternatives for reducing subsidies are being considered: (1) eliminate subsidy for air service to communities that are close to alternate air service; (2) eliminate subsidy for air service to more than one connecting airport and to certain communities close to alternate service; (3) eliminate subsidy for air service to communities with the highest annual subsidy requirements; and (4) eliminate subsidy for air service to communities that historically have enplaned the fewest passengers. This rulemaking will provide a substantial cost savings to the national economy as well as continued availability of EAS to the extent allowed by the FY 1989 appropriation. This rulemaking will result in certain increases in time and cost to utilize alternate service (cont)

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 42 USC 2000d-4

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 21

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In 1981, the Department proposed a consolidation and expansion of its existing Title VI regulation (49 CFR Part 21). Few comments were received on this NPRM, and a final regulation was never published. The Department reviewed the existing regulation to determine if changes were needed. It was concluded that the Department can continue to enforce Title VI appropriately through the existing regulation. Consequently the Department does not anticipate further rulemaking action, and intends to withdraw the NPRM.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: EO 11625; EO 12138; 45 USC 803; PL 95-507

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 23

Abstract: As part of the NPRM that proposed its minority business program rule (49 CFR Part 23), the Department proposed rules concerning minority business involvement in direct DOT procurement. However, because of the program established by Public Law 95-507, these proposed rules became unnecessary, and were never finalized. That program provides for subcontracting plans and goals in certain direct Federal contracts as well as for disadvantaged business set-asides under the Small Business Administration 8(a) program.

Abstract: This rule will prohibit discrimination against air travelers on the basis of age and implement the Age Discrimination Act of 1975. The NPRM further includes alternative proposals to set the per-person limit at $75,000 or $100,000 or to eliminate all minimum amounts, requiring a public notice instead. Alternatively, the Board proposed to declare it to be an unfair and deceptive practice to divert a passenger without arranging and paying for alternate transportation to the destination airport named on the passenger's ticket. Abstract: The American Association of Airport Executives, the Airport Operators Council International and the Air Transport Association of America petitioned the CAB to simplify its counter-sign requirements. Presently, airlines are required to display four different consumer protection notices on their ticket counters. The petitioners alleged that the current notices are hard to read and, therefore, do not provide much notice to passengers. They proposed replacing the four notices with one simplified counter sign. The CAB adopted an NPRM that proposed a number of alternatives, such as a long and/or short notice, where the notices would be required to be posted and whether a smoking notice should be included. 1555. + POSTING OF TARIFFS – NOTICE OF CONTRACT OF CARRIAGE

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1373

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 221

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Final rule allows carriers an alternative to the current requirement that they post their entire tariffs for passenger and cargo foreign air transportation in printed hard copy at each ticket-sales location. Carriers could provide more useful information to consumers using summaries, computer terminals, and printed copies of tariff information. This final rule permits international carriers the option of making their tariff information available to consumers in a manner similar to that currently used to provide notice of incorporated contract terms to airline passengers traveling in domestic air transportation. Specifically, it permits the airlines to satisfy the posting requirements quickly and economically by largely eliminating the costly and onerous medium of paper at their sales locations. The airlines could furnish information on fares, rates, and rules subject to frequent change through the use of electronic transmissions to display terminals at their sales locations. This process would also allow airlines to provide consumers with printed copies of this information upon request. Only those rules subject to infrequent

Abstract: A petition proposed to amend the requirement that air carriers post cargo tariffs at stations, offices, and locations other than their principal office. The petitioners proposed to allow carriers to maintain a memorandum tariff at each location and have a toll-free number for shippers to obtain access to complete tariff information. Action has been terminated as moot, since the relief requested has been rendered unnecessary by the new posting rules adopted in RIN AB38 on 12/29/88 (53 FR 52675).

Abstract: Rulemaking would redefine and establish more stringent qualifying criteria for individuals engaged in transporting and transferring various categories of oil and dangerous liquid cargoes. The Port and Tanker Safety Act of 1978 mandated the establishment of personnel qualification and manning standards for tank vessels. In addition, the International Convention on the Standards for Training, Certification, and Watchkeeping for Seafarers (STCW), 1978 has entered into effect and establishes international standards for tank vessel personnel qualifications. In view of the length of time since

1606. GUIDELINES ON NAVIGATION BRIDGE VISIBILITY (85-099)

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 46 USC 369; 46 USC 391a

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 164; 46 CFR 32; 46 CFR 72; 46 CFR 91; 46 CFR 92; 46 CFR 108; 46 CFR 157; 46 CFR 190

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Limited visibility from the navigation bridge of vessels has been identified as a factor in vessel casualties and near-misses. This action would establish standards for acceptable limits of visibility based on existing international guidelines. Because the primary focus is on new vessel design, costs are estimated to be minimal compared to potential benefits in casualties prevented.

Additional Information: This is the first in a series of projects, numbered 85-200 to 85-211, which have been split off from Coast Guard 84-069 which implemented the 1983 Amendments to SOLAS 1974. So many revisions were necessary that it was better to make several small and easily identifiable projects rather than a large and confusing one. Because of staffing assignments, the projects may not be completed in numerical order, and many cannot be given estimated completion dates.

Abstract: Various laws, international agreements, and Coast Guard regulations require the posting of specific certificates, licenses, plans, operating instructions, and warnings onboard vessels. Some of these contain essential operational data which must be accessible at all times; others are primarily informational. Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: PL 100-220

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 151; 33 CFR 158

Abstract: This proposal would implement Annex V of the International Convention for the Prevention of Pollution by Ships, 1973. The Act to Prevent Pollution from Ships, as amended by Title II of P. L. 100-220, requires the Secretary to administer and enforce the annex. The Act would reduce the incidence of discharges of plastics, including synthetic fishing nets and other ship-generated garbage, into the oceans. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 46 USC 4310

CFR Citation: 33 CFR 179.01 to 179.19

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking would require marine dealers to furnish boat and engine manufacturers with serial numbers of new boats and engines sold and the names and addresses of retail first purchasers of those products. Manufacturers would use the information to locate purchasers of bosts and engines recalled for defects which create a substantial risk of personal injury to the public and for failures to comply with applicable regulations. Currently many manufacturers cannot obtain sufficient first-purchaser information and their attempts to notify during recalls are inadequate.

Abstract: The Coast Guard is proposing to amend the regulations concerning the reinspection of offshore supply vessels (OSVs) in foreign ports. Currently OSVs holding two year certificates of inspection are reinspected between the 10th and 14th month of the certificate's period. In recent years, more OSVs have been based overseas in remote locations. Vessel owners must reimburse the Coast Guard for inspector travel and per diem costs in connection with foreign inspections. This action would propose an alternative to the traditional Coast Guard mid-period reinspection. The benefits would be flexibility and financial savings to the OSV industry and more effective use of Coast Guard resources.

Abstract: The FAA is issuing this advance notice in compliance with Section 9(a) of Public Law 100-591, the "Aviation Safety Research Act of 1988." The objective of this preliminary action is to determine the feasibility of installing in all air-carrier aircraft crashworthy fuselage fuel tanks and fuselage fuel lines which are resistant and which disconnect and seal in the event of an accident. This advance notice solicits public participation in identifying and selecting a regulatory course of action by inviting interested persons to submit specific comments and arguments concerning the proposed regulatory action. This rulemaking is considered significant because of statutory requirements.

The current regulations are confusing and not clearly understood. The proposed amendments would clarify the number of flight attendants required when passengers are onboard an airplane, during specified periods, and proposals would allow for a reduced number of flight attendants onboard an airplane during specified periods. The proposals would specify the conditions to be met to reduce the number of flight attendants at these stops. Additionally, the proposals would allow other authorized persons to be substituted for the required flight attendants at these stops, and would clearly establish the requirements for training for those authorized persons. A proposed new rule would clarify where the required flight attendants and other persons must be located when they are onboard the airplane. This action is considered significant because of the substantial public interest.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice will propose to revise the current requirements for passenger emergency exits and to adopt two new exit types into the regulations. These proposals are intended to provide more consistent standards with respect to exit types and quantities required for passenger seating configurations while retaining the same level of safety. This notice also will propose to reduce the maximum inflation time of an escape slide to reflect the current state of the art. These proposals resulted from the Public Technical Conference on Emergency Evacuation of Transport Airplanes held in Seattle, Washington on September 3-6, 1985. This rulemaking is considered significant because it involves an important cabin-safety issue.

Abstract: This action would propose to improve aircrew performance in air carrier and commuter operations by establishing a core of training requirements to include cockpit resource management (CRM) training, airman upgrade training, milestone schedules for training, criteria for training centers, etc. This training method would not be mandatory but rather would provide an alternative method of meeting the training requirements of Parts 121 and 135. Abstract: This proposed Special Federal Aviation Regulation (SFAR) would establish a voluntary alternative method for meeting the training, evaluation, certification, and qualification requirements for flight crewmembers, flight attendants, aircraft dispatchers, instructors, evaluators, and other operations personnel subject to the training requirements of 14 CFR Part 121 and Part 135. The FAA has developed this alternative method in response to recommendations made by a task force composed of representatives from the Government, airlines, aircrew professional organizations, and airline industry organizations. The proposed SFAR is designed to improve aircrew performance and would allow certificate holders that are subject to the training requirements of Part 121 and Part 135 to develop innovative training programs that incorporate the most recent advances in training methods and techniques. CFR Citation: 14 CFR 170

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, December 31, 1988.

Abstract: This rulemaking would prescribe benefit-cost based criteria for establishment and discontinuance of visual flight rule (VFR) airport traffic control tower facilities. It considers traffic density (number of aircraft operations without consideration of aircraft size), passengers served, and aircraft operating efficiencies along with the cost of establishing and maintaining or decommissioning a tower. The FAA utilizes these criteria to assess benefits and costs associated with establishing or decommissioning an airport traffic control tower at an airport as a part of its mission to maximize safety and efficiency throughout the airport and airway system consistent with available resources. This regulation, if promulgated, would implement the requirements of recent legislation requiring the publication of criteria for navigational aids and airport traffic control towers as a Federal regulation. This rulemaking is significant because of statutory requirements.

1713. REVIEW OF MEDICAL STANDARDS AND CERTIFICATION PROCEDURES

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1354(a) Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 313(a); 49 USC 1355 Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 314; 49 USC 1421 Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 601; 49 USC 1427 Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 607

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 67

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: These regulations specify the medical standards which must be met before a medical certificate is issued to an airman. For example, a medical certificate is required before a person can obtain a pilot license. During rulemaking involving these regulations, a considerable number of commenters expressed the belief that the current standards should and could be revised to state, in generally applicable objective terms, all those circumstances in which the FAA will issue medical certificates. In the past, some certificates have been issued on a case-by-case basis, with appropriate limitations, under exemption and waiver provisions where strict compliance with the existing standards was not essential in the interest of safety. A comprehensive review of these regulations is necessary to determine if the commenters' arguments are correct. If they are and the requested regulatory changes are possible, it could greatly reduce burdens, both on the FAA and airmen, associated with the processing of medical certificates.

Abstract: This notice proposes to amend the airworthiness standards for transport category airplane landing gear aural warning systems and the operating rules for air carrier and air taxi operators of transport airplanes by updating the present requirements to make them more functionally oriented. This proposal is prompted by reports of nuisance or inappropriate aural warnings which have occurred in modern transport airplanes when strictly adhering to the present regulations. It is intended to enhance flight safety while decreasing the regulatory burden associated with making an equivalent level of safety finding or exemption, for those systems that do not meet the existing requirements. Abstract: Subpart E was implemented to segregate aircraft departing/arriving Luke Air Force Base Federal Airway Victor 16 (V-16) from uncontrolled aircraft operating along that airway. The United States Air Force has recently established a military approach control unit at Luke Air Force Base. Petitioner believes there is no longer a valid reason to retain this part of the regulation since the Luke Air Force Base approach control exercises control over the subject airspace and is aware of all activity in that area. Abstract: This notice proposes to update the regulations for the location of nationality and registration marks on fixed-wing aircraft and airships. This proposal would modify the requirements for the location of marks on fixed-wing aircraft and airships with configurations that are not addressed by the existing regulations. Abstract: The FAA amends its regulations to require digital flight data recorders and cockpit voice recorders (CVRs) to be installed in a broad category of airplanes and rotorcraft operated by air carriers and commuters, as well as in selected aircraft operated in general aviation. The amendments are in response to legislation which mandates the FAA to amend its flight recorder and CVR requirements in accordance with recommendations from the National Transportation Safety Board (NTSB). The intent of this rulemaking is to provide more information to accident investigators in determining the causes of accidents and the measures needed to correct the causes. In addition, the FAA also requests additional comments regarding the general aviation requirements.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 61

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This final rule would establish a recreational pilot certificate which would allow a student pilot to receive certification to fly certain aircraft after fewer hours of training than are currently required of a private pilot applicant. The recreational pilot certificate is intended to be a low-cost alternative to a private pilot certificate for persons interested in flying basic, experimental, or homebuilt aircraft in close proximity to a home airport that is not in airspace in which communication with an air traffic control facility is required. The rule would also establish an annual flight review requirement for noninstrument-rated private pilots with fewer than 400 flight hours. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest and safety implications.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 27; 14 CFR 29

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This project proposes to amend the rotorcraft airworthiness standards in Parts 27 and 29 of the FAR. These proposals would add two dynamic crash-impact design requirement conditions for seat and occupant restraint systems, increase the static design load factors for seating devices and items of mass in the cabin or adjacent to the cabin as prescribed, prescribe a shoulder harness for each occupant, and add human impact injury criteria for the dynamic crash-impact conditions. These proposals are intended to significantly improve occupant protection levels in a survivable emergency landing impact. This rulemaking is significant because of the obvious safety improvements in crash situations, but also because of industry and operator concerns as to incurred costs due to increased weight and design effort.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1354(a) Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 313(a); 49 USC 1421(a) Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 601(a); 49 USC 1423 Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 603; 49 USC 1431(b) Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 811(b); 49 USC 1421 et seq National Environmental Policy Act, Title I; EO 11514; 49 USC 106(g)

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 36; 14 CFR 91

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposal would revise both noise certification standards and operating noise rules to ensure that aircraft certificated within certain broad noise groups or "stages" remain within those stages. Those proposals would apply to transport category large aircraft and to turbojet powered aircraft regardless of category. The proposed rule would prohibit modification of both individual airplanes and whole airplane types where those modifications would result in the growth of noise beyond the limits of the airplane's current stage. While the proposal would not restrict airplane changes that result in lower noise, it would in some cases prohibit remodification of those aircraft to return to their original noise levels. The FAA believes that these rules are necessary to correct a defect in the current regulations and to protect airports, aircraft operators, and the public from the effects of that defect. This rulemaking is significant because of intense public interest.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 21; 14 CFR 25; 14 CFR 121

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice proposes to limit increases in passenger emergency escape path distance by establishing a new standard limiting the distance any passenger seat may be from the nearest emergency exit and the distance any exit may be from an adjacent exit. The proposal would make the standard applicable to type certification of new transport category airplane models, regardless of the date of original application for type certificate, and to airplanes operating under Part 121, except those already in operation. The standard would be applicable for issuance of standard airworthiness certificates for airplanes manufactured after the NPRM date. The proposal is a result of the recent public Emergency Evacuation Task Force and is intended to improve the likelihood of passengers safely escaping an airplane during an emergency evacuation; for this reason the rulemaking is considered significant.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25; 14 CFR 121

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This notice proposes to require that the fuel-tank access panels of transport category airplanes be designed to minimize penetration by likely foreign objects and be fire resistant. This proposed change is based on service experience and is intended to reduce the hazards associated with the loss of access panels. This notice also proposes to require that the panels of all turbine powered airplanes operated in air carrier service after a specified date meet these standards. This rulemaking is considered significant because it involves an important crashworthiness safety issue.

PL 100-223 Sec 303

Abstract: This notice proposes new requirements for water-survival equipment carried aboard airplanes and rotorcraft. The requirements would apply, after specified dates, to US-certificate holders that conduct common-carriage operations with airplanes and rotorcraft. This proposal is in response to the Airport and Airway Safety and Capacity Enhancement Act of 1987 (PL 100-223) and relates to safety recommendations by the National Transportation Safety Board. The proposed requirements are intended to increase the likelihood of aircraft passengers surviving a crash landing in water and, thus, this rulemaking is significant because of the safety implications.

PL 100-223 Sec 303

Abstract: The FAA proposes to require that all seats of transport category airplanes used in air carrier operations and transport category airplanes used in scheduled intrastate service comply with improved crashworthiness standards. The Airport and Airways - Safety and Capacity Expansion Act of 1987 directs the Secretary of Transportation to initiate a rulemaking proceeding to consider requiring all seats onboard all air carrier aircraft to meet improved crashworthiness standards based upon the best available testing standards. The intended effect of this action is to increase passenger protection and survivability in survivable impact accidents. This rulemaking is considered significant because of its safety implications and statutory requirements.

As mandated by PL 100-457.

Abstract: This notice proposes to amend the Federal Aviation Regulations relating to the allocation and transfer of air carrier and commuter operator slots (i.e., instrument flight rules takeoff and landing reservations) at Kennedy International Airport, LaGuardia Airport, O'Hare International Airport, and Washington National Airport. This proposal would increase the percentage of use required in order to retain allocated slots in certain circumstances. The proposed amendment would also permit withdrawal of slots, for international and other purposes, from carriers with fewer than 8 slots at an airport if the slots were not used by that carrier. This notice also requests information on the need for further changes to the slot allocation and transfer rules in accordance with recent legislation. This rulemaking is significant because of Congressional interest.

Others relax certain existing requirements. Others allow issuance of special flight permits for an additional purpose, relax a requirement for passenger information signs, and eliminate the bulk erasure device on cockpit voice recorders. This action is in response to numerous complaints, suggestions, and petitions for exemption concerning several regulatory requirements received from users of the National Airspace System. These users state that these sections contain obsolete references and vague, complex, and inadequate language and that, in some instances, the cost of compliance is not justified by the benefits derived.

Abstract: The FAA proposes to update and clarify the certification and operations specifications requirements for persons who operate aircraft for compensation or hire by (1) codifying the Special Federal Aviation Regulation pertaining to the certification requirements and (2) consolidating into one part the certification and operations specifications requirements for persons who operate under Part 121 or Part 135. The proposal responds to the termination of the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB) and to changes in the air transportation industry since the Airline Deregulation Act of 1978. The proposal would provide a guide enabling persons who operate aircraft for compensation or hire to determine the certification and operations requirements with which they must comply.

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 25

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Notice proposes to amend Part 25 of the Federal Aviation Regulations (FAR) to upgrade the structural requirements for transport category airplane pressurized cabins by (1) amending the criteria for evaluation of the secondary effects of openings in the pressure vessel, and (2) extending the area of consideration to include openings anywhere within the pressure vessel. The required opening sizes to be considered would not be changed. The proposal is the result of an FAA review of the pressurized cabin load requirements and is intended to make the pressurized cabin load requirements less design-dependent and more objective. It would require evaluation of openings in any pressurized compartment and examination of the effects of differential pressure loads on any critical structure inside or outside of the pressurized cabin.

Abstract: The FAA amends Part 121 to require airborne low-altitude windshear warning and flight guidance equipment in airplanes and Parts 121 and 135 to require windshear training for flight crewmembers. The National Transportation Safety Board investigations show that low-altitude windshear has been a prime cause of air carrier accidents. This rule is expected to reduce windshear related accidents by training pilots in avoidance and escape techniques and by providing a low-altitude windshear warning system with flight guidance equipment in certain airplanes to increase the margin of safety if windshear is inadvertently encountered.

Abstract: This final rule sets forth regulations to require domestic and supplemental air carriers, commercial operators of large aircraft, air taxi and commuter operators, certain commercial operators, certain contractors to these operators, and air traffic control facilities not operated by the FAA or the U.S. military to have an anti-drug program for employees who perform sensitive safety- or security-related functions. A special provision has been added to the rule that provides that the final rule does not apply to any person where compliance with the final rule would violate the domestic law or policy of another country. Testing under the rule will be conducted by an employer prior to employment, periodically, randomly, after an accident, based on reasonable cause, and after an employee returns to duty to perform a sensitive safety- or security-related function for an employer. The final rule also will require that an employer provide EAP education and training services to employees and supervisors. The rule is necessary (cont)

Abstract: This final rule requires installation and use of Traffic Alert and Collision Avoidance System (TCAS) in large transport type airplanes and certain turbine powered smaller airplanes. TCAS, which utilizes the signal from existing transponders, would provide for a collision avoidance capability in the cockpit independent of the ground Air Traffic Control (ATC) system, or where there is no ATC coverage. Additionally, the rule requires that all operators of TCAS-equipped airplanes have an FAA-approved TCAS training program for flight crewmembers.

Abstract: The purpose of these amendments is to revise the regulations to accommodate the increasing demand for maintenance and alteration of U.S.-registered aircraft operated worldwide. These amendments modify the requirements for U.S. certification of a foreign repair station. In addition, a foreign or domestic manufacturer of a product for which it holds a U.S. type certificate and that is certificated by the FAA as a repair station will be allowed to return to service a component maintained or altered by a noncertified source, subject to specified conditions. Lastly, to be consistent with the air carrier operating rules, the air taxi/ commercial operator rules are amended to permit the airworthiness release to be signed by a person authorized by a U.S.-certificated foreign repair station. This action is part of a general project underway to review and update all Federal Aviation Regulations governing repair stations.

Abstract: These amendments revise the Federal Aviation Regulations (FAR) to permit rotorcraft, nonturbine-powered airplanes, gliders, and lighter-than-air aircraft, for which an approved Master Minimum Equipment List has not been developed, to be operated with inoperative instruments and equipment not essential for the safe operation of the aircraft. Furthermore, these amendments permit general aviation operators of small rotorcraft, nonturbine-powered small airplanes, gliders, and lighter-than-air aircraft, for which a Master Minimum Equipment List has been developed, the option of operating under the minimum equipment list concept or in accordance with the provisions of this final rule. This rulemaking was significant because of substantial public interest.

1788. + PROPOSED REVISION TO NOISE CERTIFICATION STANDARDS FOR PROPELLER-DRIVEN SMALL AIRPLANES

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1354 Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 313; 49 USC 1421 Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 601; 49 USC 1423 Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 603; 49 USC 1431 Federal Aviation Act of 1958, Sec. 611

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 21; 14 CFR 36

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule revised noise certification standards for propeller-driven small airplanes to substitute the use of actual takeoff tests for the level flyover tests currently specified. This rule revised test procedures applicable to noise certification tests conducted on or after January 1, 1988. It revised the noise-level limit numbers to approximate the equivalent of the sound levels measured and corrected in accordance with the current standard. These proposals resulted from industry requests for certification to be more directly based upon typical inservice noise measurements and from studies conducted in several nations over a three-year period under the auspices of the International Civil Aviation Organization. In addition, this rule exempts antique airplanes and changes involving the addition of floats or skis from the acoustical change measurement and documentation requirements of Part 21. This regulation is significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: The Association of Flight Attendants and the Joint Council of Flight Attendant Unions petitioned FAA to amend Part 121 and 135 to establish maximum duty time limits and minimum hours of rest for flight attendants. Summaries of the petitions were published (50 FR 6185 and 50 FR 25252) and requested comments to assist the FAA in determining what, if any, regulatory proposals should be developed. However it was determined that further action was unnecessary and the petition was denied. This matter was considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: This rule requires that all aircraft operating into, within, or out of the United States through a coastal air defense identification zone be operated under a filed flight plan regardless of true airspeed. Each such operation by an aircraft equipped with a functioning air traffic control (ATC) transponder must be conducted with that transponder on and reply on the appropriate code or on a code assigned by ATC. Abstract: This rule establishes a requirement for certain airport operators to submit to the Director of Civil Aviation Security, for approval and inclusion in their approved security programs, amendments to ensure that only those persons authorized to have access to secured areas of an airport are able to obtain that access and, also, to ensure that such access is denied immediately to individuals whose authority to have access changes. The rule provides for the installation and use of a system, method, or procedure that meets certain performance standards, or the use of an approved alternative system, method, or procedure for controlling access to security areas of airports. This rule is needed to improve control of the locations that provide access to secured areas of airports. It is intended to enhance airport security by precluding access to these areas by unauthorized persons. This rulemaking was significant because it was critical to aviation and airport security.

Abstract: This rule requires the "no smoking" sign to be turned on at all times on scheduled airline flights, except for flights between the United States and other countries, which are scheduled to be two hours or less in duration. This rule carries out a ban on smoking on such flights mandated by PL 100-202. The rule also makes minor changes in other, related sections of Parts 121 and 135 which affect smoking aboard air carrier aircraft during flights not covered by a total ban. Smoking in lavatories is prohibited on all air carrier flights. By December 31, 1988, aircraft lavatories must have placards which notify passengers that tampering with smoke detectors is prohibited by Federal law. Finally the required passenger briefing must include more detailed instructions on smoking, including all these changes and the new statutory ban on tampering with smoke alarms in aircraft lavatories. This rulemaking was significant because of substantial public interest.

high technology "unique" identifiers, when and if incorporated into the Commercial Driver's License Information System and the related State information systems, would reduce still further the opportunities for a driver to fraudulently obtain multiple licenses and to conceal disqualifying offenses. Alternatives under consideration include, but will not be limited to, retinal eye scans and advanced fingerprint technologies. Potential costs will accrue to the States for startup and operation of the upgraded identification methods, and to drivers and/or employers for incremental licensing costs passed on to them by the States. Safety benefits are expected to flow from the more accurate screening of CDL applicants and tracking of CDL holders' offenses.

Abstract: Sections 207-209 of the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984 establish a process whereby any State law or regulation pertaining to commercial motor vehicle safety in interstate commerce will be reviewed and analyzed by the Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Regulatory Review Panel (Safety Panel). The Safety Panel is to determine if such law or regulation has the same effect as, is less stringent than, or is additional to or more stringent than the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations. Based on the determination of the Safety Panel, the Secretary is to initiate a rulemaking proceeding to determine if such a law or regulation may remain in effect and enforced. This advance notice of proposed rulemaking is the initial rulemaking action for any possible preemptive action by the Secretary. It will contain alternatives for comment on ways the Secretary may satisfy the requirements of section 208 of the Act. Section 9109 of the Truck and Bus Safety and Regulatory Reform Act of 1988 extends the deadline for Secretarial preemption under certain conditions until no later than 10/30/91.

1804. MINIMUM LEVELS OF FINANCIAL RESPONSIBILITY FOR MOTOR CARRIERS: SELF-INSURANCE

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 10927 Note

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 387

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The FHWA has determined that the issues associated with its authority to permit motor carriers to self-insure need to be examined in light of the insurance crisis affecting the motor carrier industry. The FHWA is seeking public comment from interested parties concerning self-insurance as a viable and effective mechanism for demonstrating financial responsibility as required by the Motor Carrier Act of 1980.

This rulemaking action will further analyze the issues addressed in the interim final rule. After analyzing comments received to the 6/18/86 ANPRM, the FHWA has decided to issue a supplemental ANPRM in order to further explore the issues.

Abstract: By this rulemaking, the FHWA will be considering ways to reduce paperwork burdens imposed on motor carriers subject to the requirements of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (49 CFR 350-399). Changes are being considered in accordance with the requirements of the Paperwork Reduction Reauthorization Act of 1986. This Act requires the agencies to set goals to reduce the paperwork burden imposed on motor carriers by 20 percent by September 30, 1990.

Abstract: The FHWA is proposing revisions to the requirements for private motor carriers of passengers and the drivers of private motor vehicles of passengers. The proposed revisions would require private motor carriers of passengers and drivers of private motor vehicles of passengers to operate under the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSR). However, the paperwork burden of these requirements will be minimized and several parts of the FMCSR will not apply to either private motor carriers of passengers or to drivers of such vehicles. This rulemaking is significant in that it is controversial, involving bringing new carriers under the regulatory scheme.

Abstract: The FHWA is proposing to amend Parts 383 and 391 of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSR's) to address certain questions that were posed in the final rule (Docket MC-125; Notice No. 87-06) published in the Federal Register on June 1, 1987. Specifically, in this document the FHWA proposes to define "excessive speeding," "reckless driving" and other serious traffic violations "and other issues pertaining to the disqualification of commercial motor vehicle (cmv) drivers." The FHWA also proposes to amend the subject parts to clarify or make minor revisions. Because of the public interest in the issue of commercial motor vehicle safety and the expected benefits of improved transportation safety, this action is considered significant under the regulatory policies and procedures of the Department of Transportation.

Abstract: The need for rulemaking in this area has been caused by recent court decisions. The courts have delayed or halted several important Federal-aid highway projects on the grounds that the proximate effects or impacts from a given highway would constructively use land from a park or historic site. In each instance the FHWA had determined that there existed no constructive use. This determination was based on an analysis of proximity impacts and whether the impacts would substantially impair the functions or values which qualified the property for protection under Section 4(f) of the DOT Act. The FHWA has been operating under an informal policy directive on constructive use since 11/12/85. This rulemaking action would formalize existing policy on constructive use, and future court decisions would address the regulation rather than be based on ad hoc interpretations of specific project facts.

Abstract: The FHWA is requesting comments on several issues relating to the appropriate use of emergency warning devices for commercial motor vehicles in response to Section 9106 of the Truck and Bus Safety and Regulatory Reform Act of 1988 (Pub. L. 100-690, 102 Stat. 4181). Issues include the use of fuses as an alternative or supplement to bidirectional emergency reflective triangles, as well as all aspects of emergency warning devices, including the type allowed and exemptions and/or condition for use.

1826. ● FEDERAL MOTOR CARRIER SAFETY REGULATIONS; GENERAL; RENTAL VEHICLE LEASING

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 2905

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 390

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking action responds to a petition filed by the Truck Rental and Leasing Association (TRALA). The FHWA is proposing to amend its commercial motor vehicle marking requirements to allow certain "rental vehicles" to be marked with the name and address of the rental company and the U.S. DOT identification number issued to the rental company in lieu of requiring the renting motor carrier to display its required identification information on the sides of the rental vehicle. This action will enhance the uniform identification of commercial motor vehicles operated on the nation's highways and aid enforcement officers in carrying out their duties. This rulemaking action will also reduce the marking burden placed on motor carriers which operate rental vehicles from time to time.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation proposes to consolidate and amend existing air quality requirements for transportation projects into a single amended air quality regulation. The amended regulation is intended to streamline and simplify (1) the process of determining which highway projects are exempt from the Federal assistance limitations of section 176(a) of the Clean Air Act (CAA), and (2) the conformity and priority procedures contained in 23 CFR 770. The amendments are also intended to provide more authority and flexibility to States and to meet the objectives of the CAA in the most cost-effective and expeditious manner. The amendments are significant because they involve important departmental policy.

CFR Citation: 23 CFR 659

Abstract: The FHWA and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) are amending the regulations on certification of speed limit enforcement in order to streamline the sanction process and to take into account the provisions mandated by section 174 of the Surface

Transportation and Uniform Relocation Assistance Act of 1987 (STURAA). Section 174 of STURAA amended 23 U.S.C. 154 by giving the States the authority to increase, without loss of Federal-aid funds, the maximum speed limit to no more than 65 miles per hour (mph) on certain Interstate System highways. A notice of proposed rulemaking was issued proposing revisions to the sanction process contained in 23 CFR Part 659. A separate final rulemaking action has been issued in order to provide the States the authority to adjust the speed sampling and analysis plan required for determining the level of 55 mph noncompliance.

Abstract: The FHWA was proposing to modify the National Network for commercial motor vehicles by deleting a certain route in South Carolina. The National Network was established by the final rule on Truck Size and Weight published at 49 FR 23302 on June 5, 1984. It is maintained under 23 CFR 658, Appendix A, as amended. However, the State has now requested that the route not be deleted and the final action will take into consideration the State's changed position. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Additional Information: An interim policy statement was published 6/6/83 (48 FR 25181) to implement acceleration methods for selected projects within existing regulations. Initially, FHWA had considered issuing a new regulation as a vehicle for accelerating Federal-aid projects pursuant to Section 129 of the STAA of 1982. However, it has been determined that the objectives of Section 129 can be best implemented by revisions to existing regulations. Therefore, separate regulations will not be issued regarding the acceleration program. This approach received the concurrence of Deputy Administrator Lamm on April 11, 1984. Abstract: The FHWA is amending Parts 390, 391, and 393 of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSRs). This action amends the intracity zone exemption to make it consistent with Truck and Bus Safety and Regulatory Reform Act of 1988 (the Act) (Title IX, Subtitle B of PL 100-690, 102 Stat. 4181). It also exempts certain foreign motor carriers from the provisions of 49 CFR Part 393 for a period of one year from the date of enactment of the Act (i.e., 11/18/89). The Act also requires the Secretary to report to Congress on the effects of the delayed application and recommend "on the extent to which foreign motor carriers may or should comply with all or any of the requirements of Part 393." To comply with the Congressional mandate, the FHWA is requesting comments from all interested parties on this issue.

Abstract: The FHWA requested comments on a proposal which would mandate chemical testing of interstate drivers of commercial motor vehicles for the use of drugs. The impetus for this action is the safety and health concern associated with the use of drugs by these personnel. The goal of the rule is to reduce accidents and casualties that result from the use of drugs. This rule was preceded by two drug rulemaking actions which were published in the Federal Register on 5/13/86 (BMCS Docket No. MC-116, Amendment No. 83-17, 51 FR 17568; BMCS Docket No. MC-120, Notice No. 86-3, 51 FR 17572). The latter of those actions proposed a drug test plan (much less comprehensive than proposed here) for drivers of hazardous materials. The former requested comments on specific questions regarding the various aspects of a drug control program applicable to interstate drivers. The intent of the rule is to consolidate the subject matter of the previous actions and propose a comprehensive drug control program applicable to all drivers in interstate commerce. Abstract: This rulemaking action responded to section 210 of the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984. Section 210 requires the Department to open Part 393 of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSR), which concerns the parts and accessories necessary for the safe operation of commercial motor vehicles, for public comment and review. In essence, Part 393 is the basis for the vehicle inspection currently performed on vehicles operated by motor carriers subject to DOT jurisdiction. The resultant amendments affect requirements for axles and attached parts, brake systems, frame and frame assemblies, lights, steering systems, suspension systems, fuel systems, and other vehicle parts and accessories, and also make certain technical amendments.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Abstract: Section 215 of the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984 required the FHWA, in cooperation with the Interstate Commerce Commission, to establish a procedure to determine the safety fitness of owners and operators of commercial motor vehicles including persons seeking new or additional operating authority as motor carriers. Comments were requested regarding the proposed changes in the current safety rating procedures and a new proposal for those carriers who have not previously been assigned a safety rating or who intend to be a new entrant into the motor carrier industry. It has been determined that this rulemaking action is a significant regulation under the regulatory policies and procedures of the Department of Transportation because of the total estimated indirect benefits that may result. Abstract: The Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) was considering proposing to revise Part 399 of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSR) to implement Section 206 of the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984. After reviewing the public comments received to the ANPRM published on January 23, 1985 (50 FR 2998), the FHWA has decided that no revisions to this Part are warranted at this time. This Part is considered reissued pursuant to the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984.

Abstract: The FHWA had considered revising Part 392 of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSR) in accordance with section 206 of the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984. After reviewing the comments received in response to the ANPRM published on January 23, 1985 (50 FR 2998), FHWA has decided not to make further revisions to Part 392 at this time. This Part is considered reissued as currently written pursuant to the Motor Carrier Safety Act of 1984.

Abstract: FHWA sought comments on a request to designate boat transporters as specialized equipment under provision of section 411(d) of the Surface Transportation Assistance Act of 1982 (STAA). Of prime concern were comments and information on the following issues relating to boat transporters: maneuvering characteristics, safety, control, offtracking, crosswind effects, and the need for overall length limits on boat transporters. Information on the similarities and dissimilarities between boat transporters and auto transporters was also solicited, as well as information on the consistency of truck configurations used for hauling boats. Comments were requested regarding the need to preempt current State regulation of this vehicle, as well as an actual definition and description of boat transporters, and on the types of vehicles that should be considered as specialized equipment as well as an actual definition. Boat transporters were designated as specialized equipment by final rule published 12/2/88 at 53 FR 48634.

Abstract: On 7/21/88 (53 FR 27628), the FHWA amended Part 383 of the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Regulations (FMCSR's) to establish minimum standards for State testing and licensing of commercial motor vehicle (CMV) drivers. Standards established include: commercial driver licensing and testing procedures to be used by the States; knowledge, skills, and abilities which drivers of different types of CMV's must possess; and the information to be contained on the commercial drivers license (CDL) issued by the States. The standards also require that CMV drivers take and pass the appropriate knowledge and skills tests by 4/1/92. In addition, on 9/26/88 (53 FR 37313), the FHWA issued a notice of final disposition regarding waivers submitted by several groups of CMV drivers from various requirements of the regulation. In a separate rulemaking action, the FHWA will propose to define "excessive speeding," "reckless driving" and "other serious traffic violations" and other issues pertaining to the disqualification of CMV drivers. Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: PL 99-570, Sec 12008; 49 USC App. 2505; 49 USC 3102

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 383; 49 CFR 391

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, October 27, 1988.

Abstract: In response to Section 12008 of the Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1986, the FHWA requested comments on the establishment of a commercial driver blood alcohol concentration (BAC) standard for "driving under the influence." Also in response to Section 12008 of the Act, the National Academy of Sciences (NAS) conducted a study on the appropriateness of selecting one of several alternative BAC levels as the level at which a person operating a commercial motor vehicle would be deemed to be driving under the influence of alcohol. Based on the results of the study and the rulemaking comments, the Secretary of Transportation promulgated a commercial driver BAC standard. States are required to enact laws providing that any driver who operates a commercial motor vehicle at the Federal BAC level or above it is deemed to be driving under the influence of alcohol. States not enacting a BAC-level law for commercial motor vehicle drivers risk the loss of Federal-aid highway funds. The comments received were available to the NAS.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 4601 et seq; PL 100-17, Sec 4

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 24

A final rule must be promulgated by 4/2/89.

Abstract: This rulemaking addresses implementation of Title IV of the Surface Transportation and Uniform Relocation Assistance Act of 1987, Pub. L. 100-17, 101 Stat. 132 (STURAA). Title IV of STURAA amends the Uniform Relocation Assistance and Real Property Acquisition Policies Act of 1970 (Uniform Act), 42 U.S.C. sections 4601 to 4655 (1982). Title IV establishes: a lead agency (FHWA) to insure consistent Federal implementation; an increase in the maximum monetary benefits that can be provided to persons forced to relocate by Federal or federally assisted projects; an expansion of the Uniform Act's coverage to insure more types of displacing activities; and an allowance for a State certification program. This rulemaking was significant because of substantial public interest involved.

Abstract: The FHWA initiated rulemaking to address the use of onboard recording devices in motor vehicles operating in interstate commerce. This action was taken in response to a petition filed by the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety (IIHS) on 2/25/87. The original IIHS petition (10/86) requested that the FHWA require motor carriers to use onboard recording devices for recording the driver's hours of service. This rulemaking is considered significant because of the substantial public interest involved. A final rule was issued allowing the use of on-board recording devices under certain conditions.

Abstract: The FHWA has modified the National Network for commercial motor vehicles by deleting certain routes in Iowa and permitting restrictions on a route in Kentucky. A final rule on Truck Size and Weight published at 49 FR 23302 on June 5, 1984, established the National Network. It is maintained under 23 CFR 658, Appendix A, as amended. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest. The original NPRM had also proposed deleting a certain route in South Carolina. At the time this final rule was prepared, insufficient data was available in order to make a determination on the South Carolina route. Resolution of this issue will be addressed in a separate rulemaking action. See RIN-2125-AC23.

Abstract: The existing regulation on pavement design has been modified to eliminate unnecessary requirements and duplicative provisions. Currently, the Federal Highway Administration (FHWA) uses the "American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials (AASHTO) Interim Guide for Design of Pavement Structures, 1972," Chapter III Revised, 1981, to evaluate the adequacy of the proposed pavement designs for Federal-aid projects. AASHTO approved a new Pavement Design Guide in 1986. FHWA has solicited comments on the revised guide and will adopt it for use on Federal-aid projects as a guide, not a standard. Each State highway agency (SHA) will be required to have a process that is acceptable to FHWA for the type selection and design of new and reconstructed pavement structures. The SHA may use the design procedures outlined in the 1986 Guide or they may use other pavement design procedures that by past performance or supported by research are satisfactory for the pertinent conditions. Each SHA shall also have a pavement rehabilitation selection process and a pavement management system which are acceptable to FHWA.

FHWA is adopting the AASHTO publication for Federal-aid application. An interim final rule adopted all of the 1985 AASHTO sign and luminaires specifications except section 7, Breakaway Supports. If adopted, the revised standards could be incorporated into the Manual On Uniform Traffic Control Devices (MUTCD). In response to the ANPRM published on 6/11/86 at 51 FR 21180, the FHWA has found no conclusive data to determine that the current sight distances for passing zones are inadequate. The Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act (P.L. 98-547) requires a Report to Congress five years after promulgation of the Federal Motor Vehicle Theft Prevention Standard.

Abstract: This standard, which applies to passenger cars, requires identifying numbers or symbols to be placed on major parts of high theft passenger motor vehicles. A comprehensive evaluation will be performed to determine the effectiveness of the regulation in reducing the incidence of motor vehicle thefts and to estimate the costs of manufacturing and applying the identifying information. The evaluation of the regulation is required by the Motor Vehicle Information and Cost Savings Act and calls for a Report to Congress five years after promulgation of the standard.

Abstract: This standard, which is applicable to passenger cars, includes requirements for head restraints. Its purpose is to protect occupants from neck injury in rear-impact crashes. A comprehensive evaluation was published in February 1982. The evaluation will be updated with new cost information and extensive accident data that have become available in recent years. The regulation was selected for review because of costs, safety benefits, and public interest.

Abstract: This standard regulates the performance of antilock brake systems for passenger cars and other vehicles with hydraulic brakes. The purpose of antilock brakes is to enhance the driver's control of the vehicle during emergency braking. Antilock brakes are currently available on some passenger cars. The standard, at this time, does not require them for all cars. The regulation was selected for review because of public interest in the costs and benefits of antilock brakes.

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.108

Abstract: NHTSA proposes a comprehensive review of headlighting requirements of FMVSS No. 108 which may be simplified, while being consistent with motor-vehicle safety. The agency has concentrated its efforts into five principal areas. This action addresses the first of these, which is the feasibility of a standard directed toward onboard original-equipment headlighting performance rather than toward performance of individual aftermarket headlamps in a laboratory environment. This action is considered significant because of safety implications. Based on comments received, a second NPRM will be issued.

VOL. 54 ISS 77 AP 24 1989 UMI

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.121; 49 CFR 571.105

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Proposed action would establish a new brake standard for all trucks, buses, and trailers with a Gross Vehicle Weight Rating (GVWR) over 10,000 pounds. This standard would replace Standard No. 121, Air Brake Systems, and that portion of Standard No. 105, Hydraulic Brake Systems, that applies to vehicles with a GVWR over 10,000 pounds. It would also establish new requirements for heavy trailers having other than air-actuated brakes. In developing the standard, the agency will consider compatibility with international regulations. Research programs in support of this new standard and possible future upgradings of the standard will investigate such long-term advanced braking system concepts as antilock systems, automatic brake adjustors, load-sensing proportioning values, air driers, and retarders for heavy trucks, buses, and trailers. This rule is considered significant because of the level of public and Congressional interest. It is necessary to prevent and reduce the severity of accidents involving heavy vehicles by providing increased accident avoidance capability.

Abstract: The purpose of this advance notice is to announce that the NHTSA is considering the proposal of requirements for light trucks, vans, and multipurpose passenger vehicles intended to reduce the risk of fatalities and injuries in side impacts and other crashes where the side protection of the vehicle is a relevant factor, and to request comments to assist the agency in developing the proposal. The contemplated requirements would be part of the agency's efforts to address the serious problem of side impacts. As another part of those efforts, the agency earlier this year proposed requirements for passenger cars intended to reduce the risk of injuries to the thorax and pelvis in side impact crashes between vehicles. This rulemaking is considered significant because of the public safety implications.

1918. FEDERAL MOTOR VEHICLE SAFETY STANDARD NO. 301 - FUEL SYSTEM INTEGRITY

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1407; 15 USC 1410

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 552; 49 CFR 571

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard (FMVSS) No. 301 specifies requirements for the integrity of motor vehicle fuel systems so that fires that result from fuel spillage during and after motor vehicle crashes may be reduced. This standard applies to passenger cars and school buses, and to multipurpose passenger vehicles, trucks, and buses that have a gross vehicle weight rating of 10,000 pounds or less. The California Highway Patrol (CHP) petitioned the agency to specify requirements in FMVSS No. 301 to reduce fuel spills from the fuel tank or fuel lines on heavy trucks and truck tractors over 10,000 pounds. The fuel spills, according to the CHP, are due to damage caused by road debris. On May 2, 1988, the agency published a grant of petition for rulemaking in the Federal Register for the CHP petition. However, the agency is granting the petition pending the results of its forthcoming investigation of fuel-tank fires in over-the-road trucks.

Amendments reducing the fuel economy standard for a particular model year are required to be made by the beginning of a model year.

Abstract: Automotive Importers of America, Inc., Austin Rover Group Ltd., Mercedes-Benz of North America, Inc., Competitive Enterprise Institute, and General Motors Corporation petitioned to lower passenger car Corporate Average Fuel Economy (CAFE) standards for Model Years 1989 and 1990. The March 1988 ANPRM sought public comment on whether to reduce the CAFE standard for MY 1989 and/or 1990, to determine whether retaining the present standard would adversely affect U.S. employment or competitiveness of the U.S. auto industry.

1932. ● + PART 544, MOTOR VEHICLE THEFT PREVENTION; REPORTING REQUIREMENTS FOR MOTOR VEHICLE RENTAL AND LEASING COMPANIES

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 15 USC 2032

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 544

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, October 25, 1989.
Rental and leasing companies who are self-insured are required to report to the agency October 25th of each year.

Abstract: This notice has proposed to require theft reports only from rental and leasing companies with combined fleets of 50,000 or more vehicles. This would result in the largest rental and leasing companies being required to file theft reports, instead of the approximately 4,000 companies currently required to do so. NHTSA has determined that reports from the largest rental and leasing companies would provide the agency with the representative sampling of the theft experience of rental and leasing companies, while reducing an unnecessary burden on smaller such companies.

Abstract: Proposes a comprehensive review of headlighting requirements of Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 108 which may be simplified, while being consistent with motor vehicle safety. The agency has concentrated its efforts into five principal areas. This action addresses the second through the fifth. The second is the desirability of specifications for headlamp life. The third concerns the necessity of dimensional specifications for headlamp equipment. The fourth is the issue of headlamp aim. The fifth is the elimination of obsolete photometric requirements. These issues have been separated from RIN 2127-AB87. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Abstract: Volkswagen of America petitioned to change Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 108, Lamps, Reflective Devices, and Associated Equipment to permit an additional standardized replaceable light source for motor vehicle headlamps. The type of light source proposed was that currently used in European headlamps, the type H-4. Review of the merits of the petition found that, as used in Europe, the light source was not capable of achieving the level of performance required of U.S. light sources and NHTSA subsequently proposed a U.S. version to be known as the type HB2, which would have interchangeability and performance aspects compatible with U.S. safety needs. Comments by the U.S. and foreign lighting and vehicle manufacturers led to a supplemental notice. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

This amendment is in response to a petition for rulemaking relating to an inadvertent knock-out-of-gear accident resulting in a fatality. In addition, FMVSS 114 is proposed to be amended to insure that, if a steering column locking device is employed, the device cannot be activated until the key is removed and the vehicle must be in park on automatic transmission to remove the key and reverse for manual transmissions.

Significance: Nonsignificant

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.105

Abstract: Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 105 requires vehicles to have one or more brake system indicator lamps in the instrument panel area, to warn drivers about certain types of brake failure and to indicate when the parking brake is in the applied position. Section S5.3.2 of the standard requires that the brake system indicator lamps be activated automatically when the vehicle is started, to enable the driver to check whether the lamp bulb is burned out. That section also provides that in a vehicle equipped with an automatic transmission, the activation of the lamp as a check of lamp function is not required when the transmission shift lever is in a forward or reverse drive position, since the vehicle cannot be started when the transmission shift lever is in those positions. In response to a petition for rulemaking submitted by Mazda, this notice proposes to amend the standard to provide that the activation of the lamp as a check of lamp function is not required whenever the starting of a vehicle is prevented by an interlock switch.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1392

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.102

Abstract: The current stated purpose of Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 102 is to reduce the likelihood of shifting errors. Manufacturers have provided a permanently displayed shift lever position indicator to meet the requirement of S3.2 of this Standard. Chrysler and General Motors petitioned the agency to amend the Standard to allow the use of electronic "PRNDL" displays. As the proposed requirements would facilitate the use of electronic displays, while ensuring the information is displayed at all times, an NPRM was issued.

Abstract: The agency proposed to amend Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard No. 115 and Part 567 with regard to vehicles not originally manufactured for sale in the United States and that do not comply with Federal motor vehicle safety standards, but that are imported into this country by businesses unaffiliated with the original manufacturer. These vehicles often are labelled with "homemade" 17 digit Vehicle Identification Numbers (VIN). Under the proposal, the importer would label the vehicle partially exempt from Standard No. 115 and direct interested parties to the location of the original manufacturers's number to be used in lieu of the VIN. The agency is taking this action in response to a petition from the National Automobile Theft Bureau (NATB).

Abstract: The purpose of this notice is to report the results of this agency's actions for determining which car lines are subject to the marking requirements of the motor vehicle theft prevention standard for the 1989 model year, and publish a list of those car lines. NHTSA has previously published a list of the car lines that were selected as high theft car lines for prior model years, beginning with the 1987 model year. The list in this notice includes all of the car lines in the previous lists, as well as the new lines that were introduced for the 1989 model year and that have been selected as likely high theft lines. This notice is revised yearly (each model year). This notice is used by other Federal agencies in carrying out the statutory requirements under Titles II and III. Title II is Antifencing Measures, 18 USC 511, and Title III is Importation and Exportation Measures, 18 USC 553 and 19 USC 1627.

1962. FEDERAL MOTOR VEHICLE SAFETY STANDARD -- REAR-VIEW MIRRORS - SURE-VIEW PETITION

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1381 et. seq.

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 571.111

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This is in response to a petition from Sure-View Inc., requesting the Federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standard (FMVSS) No. 111 require that all motor vehicles contain a mirror system in which a plane mirror is in the same casing as a convex mirror. Petition was denied because the standard does not prohibit convex mirrors on the driver's side as supplementary aids or on the passenger's side. Also, NHTSA was concerned that convex mirrors may distort images and distances and, therefore, may not be appropriate for all drivers.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: PL 100-342 Rail Safety Improvement Act of 1988

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 228

Abstract: FRA's interpretive guidance concerning compliance with an hours-of-service statute will be extended by operation of law unless FRA acts within 6 months. FRA guidelines specify a maximum noise level for the interior of facilities used to give train crews required periods of rest under the Hours of Service Act. The statute will make the noise level applicable to on-track vehicles used as dormitories for other railroad employees unless FRA alters its guidance on this matter for the on-track vehicles. Issues that need to be examined include the appropriateness of the current guidance in the expanded context, and the availability of reasonable alternatives.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: PL 100-342 Rail Safety Improvement Act of 1988

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 225

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This project addresses possible problems of bias and inaccuracy in FRA's railroad data base. Although FRA investigates about 400 accidents a year and receives unsolicited information on a few more accidents, FRA's sole source of information on the great majority of railroad accidents is the railroad company itself. The proposed rule would require that the railroad provide written notification to any employee whom the railroad alleges to have caused a certain type of accident, informing the employee of the relevant allegations and of his or her right to file an accident statement with FRA. The proposed rule also would establish the format and filing procedures for such statements. Alternatives being considered are: (1) revising the reporting form itself to include boilerplate language regarding what, where, and how to file the employee statement and (2) requiring a separate notice to the employee with the same information. Potential costs have yet to be determined. This action is considered significant because of Departmental policy.

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, June 22, 1989.

Abstract: Railroads use on-track equipment adapted for service as mobile sleeping quarters, in order to have large dormitories adjacent to work sites. A recently enacted statute requires FRA to establish rules to protect those vehicles from the risk of being struck by other on-track vehicles. This project is intended to accomplish that purpose and is therefore considered significant.

Abstract: FRA has been granted legal authority to disqualify an individual railroad employee who is shown to be unfit to perform safety-sensitive functions based on a violation of FRA's safety rules. The procedures that FRA will employ in exercising this authority must include a notice and hearing for the individual. FRA must define what constitutes a safety-sensitive function; the nature of the hearing; appellate review structure; and criteria for what constitutes unfitness. Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, December 22, 1988.
Statute requires both a generic change within 30 days of enactment and a detailed change within 6 months of enactment.

Abstract: The Rail Safety Improvement Act raised the maximum civil penalty amount for violations of FRA rules and it authorized the imposition of penalties against individuals for willful violations. An interim rule (7/28/88) extended the civil penalty provisions of the safety regulations to individuals and increased the maximum penalty from $2,500 to $10,000 (to $20,000 under some circumstances). This final rule raises the penalty amounts initially assessed for particular violations and reserves the right to assess the maximum $20,000 penalty where warranted. To the extent that the final rule does not amend interim rule provisions, the interim rule provisions are now final. The final rule also includes a statement of agency policy concerning enforcement of the federal railroad safety laws. This action was significant because of substantial public interest involved.

Abstract: The rule requires certification in writing of tests of automatic train control, train stop, and cab signal. While the previously existing rule requires that virtually all such tests be certified, the new rule expands that provision to require certification in writing that the test was properly performed by anyone testing the equipment. The certifications must be kept and maintained in the same manner as is presently required for daily locomotive inspections under 49 CFR Part 229. This action was considered significant because of substantial public interest and safety factors.

Abstract: This regulation would set out the process applicants for grants under the UMT Act (49 USC 1601 et seq.) and the Federal-Aid Highway Act should follow in order to be eligible for Federal financial assistance for major urban mass transportation investments. A major urban mass transportation investment is any project that involves the construction of a new fixed guideway for use by buses or rail vehicles. This regulation is significant because it involves important departmental policy.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1324; 49 USC 1371; 49 USC 1387

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 241; 14 CFR 298; 14 CFR 399

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The threshold for the aviation-information program for regulatory flexibility analysis is 60 seats or maximum payload of 18,000 pounds or less. Carriers operating aircraft under these limits are considered small carriers. FAA, on the other hand, uses a threshold based on the operational certificate requirements (Part 121 versus Part 135) with the threshold established at 30 seats or maximum payload of 7,500 pounds for a Part 135 certificate. FAA regulatory analysis for safety, congestion, etc., centers around the lower threshold which means much of the aviation economic information that they use has to be manipulated to fit their needs. This proposal of standardizing the threshold within the Department would save considerable resources and would eliminate much confusion in the air transportation industry. Most carriers, especially the newer ones, are familiar with FAA's requirements. This rulemaking is significant because it will achieve consistency in departmental treatment.

Abstract: Currently commuter air carriers providing scheduled passenger service file two quarterly traffic schedules. One schedule summarizes nine traffic elements while the other schedule provides the origination and destination for all the carriers' on-line passengers. The Department is considering proposing a new traffic and market data system for certificated and foreign air carriers. This system could be used for commuter air carriers, providing the Department with one automated traffic and market data system for all carriers. Abstract: The present definition of revenue and nonrevenue passengers for aviation reporting purposes is stated in terms of the exemptions for free and reduced-rate transportation in section 403(b) of the Federal Aviation Act of 1958. These definitions have become outmoded in the process of air-fare deregulation. In addition, first class and coach passengers are defined in terms of the type of fare paid with premium or standard fares being the benchmark for first class. 2014. + OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE PROCEDURES FOR GAS PIPELINES

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1672

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 192

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Adequate procedures for pipeline operation and maintenance, backed up by personnel training, have proven effective in minimizing the potential for accidents. Gas operators are required to have such procedures, but the existing requirements lack the clarity and specificity needed to assure a uniform, broad-based level of safety for all pipelines. Therefore, this proposal would clarify the existing requirements, make them more comprehensive, and, where appropriate, similar to the more detailed requirements applicable to the operation and maintenance of hazardous liquid pipelines. This is a significant action because of the need for adequate procedures to provide a basis for training and qualifying operator personnel.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 2002

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 195

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Recent accidents involving petroleum product pipelines demonstrate the potential for catastrophic losses if a large spill occurs in a populated area. Studies have shown that accidents attributable to hidden material or construction defects can be prevented by restricting operation to not more than 80 percent of a prior test or operating pressure. In this regard, significant results have been achieved by imposing such an operating restriction on those product pipelines that carry highly volatile liquids. This rule would extend this existing safety standard to all hazardous liquid pipelines. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest in the safety implications.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1672; 49 USC 2002

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 192; 49 CFR 195

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, November 1, 1989.

Abstract: Maintenance of appropriate information about pipelines is essential for emergency response, compliance with safety standards, and other purposes. As part of a continuing policy to adopt similar requirements for gas and hazardous liquid pipelines where appropriate for safety, this action proposes to equalize as far as possible the requirements that gas and liquid operators keep maps and records to show the location and other characteristics of pipelines, and keep an inventory of pipe. In addition, operators would be required to provide this information to State agencies upon request. This is a significant action because of Congressional and State concerns about the need for appropriate public officials to have pipeline information.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1802 to 1804; 49 USC 1808

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 171.7

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1672

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 192

Abstract: Many gas distribution operators look for signs of dying vegetation as a leak survey technique. This technique may not be as effective as other available methods, and leaks have occurred in areas where vegetation surveys had been conducted. This action would explore requiring the use of alternative methods to meet the leak detection survey requirements.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1803; 49 USC 1804; 49 USC 1808

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 171; 49 CFR 172; 49 CFR 173; 49 CFR 176; 49 CFR 178; 49 CFR 179

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action will develop performance-oriented packaging standards and hazardous material classification based on the United Nations Committee of Experts on the Transport of Dangerous Goods. Rulemaking also includes former non-significant rulemakings entitled "Consolidation of Specifications and Establishment of Performance Standards for Specification Bags" (Docket No. HM-153), "Specifications for and use of Specification 17 Steel Drums" (Docket No. HM-182), and "Organic Peroxide Requirements" (Project 186-72). The rulemaking is significant because a large number of specifications for packaging in the hazardous Materials Regulations would be affected by this project. To a large extent the complexity and mass of the present Hazardous Materials Regulations are due to the detailed specification-type packaging standards contained in these regulations. To replace these with standards based on the U.N. system would both simplify the present regulations and facilitate international trade.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1803; 49 USC 1804; 49 USC 1809

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 171

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The current regulations require reports of hazardous material incidents. The objective of this review is to determine if the current data requirements can be modified to reduce the burden on industry but still result in the collection of the information needed for the hazardous materials safety program. Although safety programs, such as the one covered by these regulations, require data in order to function properly, it is possible that the data collection can be made less burdensome. This rulemaking is significant because of substantial public interest due to safety implications.

2042. + NATURAL GAS AND HAZARDOUS LIQUID PIPELINE DAMAGE PREVENTION PROGRAM

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 49 USC 2002(e)

CFR Citation: 49 CFR 195

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Each year a large percentage of gas and hazardous liquid pipeline accidents are caused by excavation damage. Based on existing rules intended to reduce damage to gas pipelines in populated areas, this action would require hazardous liquid pipeline operators to provide damage prevention programs and gas operators would have to expand their programs to cover rural areas. This is a significant action because of the widespread interest in the use of "one-call" programs to prevent damage to buried pipelines.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1301; 49 USC 1374; 49 USC 1381; 49 USC 1386; 49 USC 1482

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 217; 14 CFR 241

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: DOT has finalized a rule that requires submission to DOT of nonstop market data from foreign carriers providing scheduled service between their home countries and the United States. This information is needed to evaluate existing bilateral agreements and reciprocity between U.S. and foreign countries. In addition, international charter data currently collected from carriers will be incorporated with this reporting. This nonstop market data will virtually eliminate the Department's need for data collected by the Immigration and Naturalization Service on Form I-92. Although there will be some start-up costs, it is anticipated that over the long run there will be substantial savings for both the industry and the government. See 2137-AB01 for companion rule for U.S. air carriers.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1324; 49 USC 1371; 49 USC 1377; 49 USC 1387

CFR Citation: 14 CFR 241

Abstract: Large U.S. air carriers file detailed service segment data in ADP format for scheduled operations, while smaller carriers file a condensed version on a hardcopy form. Charter data is filed on another form. The Department has issued a final rule which incorporates all three systems onto one automated data system by standardizing the reporting between scheduled and charter operations. Effective January 1, 1990, much of the data currently collected has been eliminated. Also much of the data reported on the hardcopy Form 41 T-Schedules has been eliminated, since data for the schedules can be extracted from the automated system. Further, the foreign air carrier traffic and market reporting (2137-AA97) is incorporated into this automated system, providing a uniform traffic and market system for the Department.

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 49 USC 1803; 49 USC 1804; 49 USC 1805; 49 USC 1806

Abstract: This final rule will allow the use of railroad tank-car tanks with shell thicknesses in localized areas of less than the minimum currently allowed. The rule requires that tank shells be measured under specific conditions to ensure that the results of repairs do not further decrease shell thickness or result in a reduction in the level of safety. Under the former rule, owners were required to bring tanks into conformance or remove them from hazardous materials service. Final rule will allow the tank cars to conform to a less stringent standard thereby avoiding the substantial costs associated with complete restoration or purchase of a new tank car, while still ensuring an adequate level of safety.

2075. ● FEDERAL INCOME TAX ASPECTS OF THE CAPITAL CONSTRUCTION FUND

Significance: Nonsignificant

Legal Authority: 46 USC App 1114(b); 46 USC App 1177

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 391

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Maritime Administration and Department of the Treasury are jointly proposing to amend the regulations for determining the tax liability of participants in a Capital Construction Fund (CCF) to give effect to amendments in the Tax Reform Act of 1986 (PL 99 514). This rulemaking has been split off from Rin 2133-AA65,

VOL 54 ISS 77 APR 24 1989 UMI

DOT—MarAd — Proposed Rule Stage

which proposes to implement changes in regulations for administering the CCF, consistent with PL 99-514.

2076. + CARGO PREFERENCE, U.S.-FLAG VESSELS: DETERMINATION OF FAIR AND REASONABLE RATES FOR BULK VESSELS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 46 USC 1241(b); 46 USC 1114(b)

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 382. (New)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This regulation would require provision of rate and cost data to MARAD so it can determine fair and reasonable rates for carriage of preference cargo in bulk vessels at the request of concerned Federal agencies. MARAD would calculate fair and reasonable rates by using aggregate averages to determine all operating costs except fuel, using the historical data submitted by the operators, dividing the ships into competitive groupings based on size and type. It would establish requirements for submission of data on which the methodology would be based. This rulemaking is significant because it concerns a matter on which there is substantial public interest. It would clarify the meaning of a statutory term.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 46 USC 1114, (Appendix); 46 USC App 1114

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 252

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: MARAD has proposed a rulemaking that clarifies its policy that cargoes which are not preference cargoes, but are reserved to U.S.-flag vessels by agreement of countries which receive U.S. foreign assistance in the form of cash transfers (or any similar cash assistance program), are not "commercial" cargoes, subject to foreign competition and not subsidizable.

CFR Citation: 46 CFR 221

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Enactment of Public Law 100-710 on November 23, 1988 has made significant changes in the laws relating to vessel documentation, financing, and transfer, effective on January 1, 1989. These changes impact on MARAD's responsibilities with respect to the approval of the transfer of interests in U.S. documented vessels and the approval of commercial transactions where preferred mortgages are created, with one or more vessels as security.

DOT—MarAd — Final Rule Stage

These changes in the law are at variance with existing MARAD regulations. The legislative history of Public Law 100-710 clearly anticipated the need for contemporaneous guidelines that allow uniform application of the underlying policy and provide public guidance on that policy as of the effective date. Publication of an interim final rule permits implementation of the new law without a hiatus and would minimize transitional uncertainty among the corporate and financial communities that are affected. This rulemaking is considered significant because of substantial public interest.

Legal Authority: 46 USC 1184; 46 USC 1114(b); PL 97-35

Abstract: These regulations would implement Sec. 1603 of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1981 (P.L. 97-35), which adds a new Sec. 614 to the Merchant Marine Act, 1936 (46 App. U.S.C. 1184).

Additional Information: NPRM being withdrawn because the Maritime Subsidy Board final Opinion and Order in Docket S-764, that does not require CDS repayment for bulk vessels carrying preference cargoes, is a more attractive alternative for operators than ODS suspension that requires CDS repayment. Also, operator of only liner vessels to make election is in bankruptcy.

2090. REVISION OF 31 CFR PART 205 (TDC NO. 1075), PAYMENTS BETWEEN THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT AND RECIPIENT ORGANIZATIONS

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 31 USC 6503

CFR Citation: 31 CFR 205

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Revision of 31 CFR 205 will implement a new funding technique for Federal programs. The regulation would require a State to pay interest on Federal funds from the time they are deposited to the State's account until the time those funds are paid out to redeem checks or warrants or make payments by other means. This new "Checks Issued-Interest Remitted" technique was developed in response to statutes in some States that require that funds reside in a bank account prior to the issuance of checks. This revision also provides for the remittance of interest by the Federal Government if a State disburses its own funds for program purposes in accordance with Federal law, regulation or Federal/State agreement.(cont)

2113. NON-GENERIC DESIGNATIONS OF GRAPE WINE HAVING GEOGRAPHICAL SIGNIFICANCE

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 27 USC 205

CFR Citation: 27 CFR 4.24

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposal expands the list of names officially recognized under 27 CFR Part 4, as being non-generic for the purposes of labeling and advertising of wine. This proposal is the result of petitions from numerous foreign countries for ATF recognition of non-generic wine designations which, in their view, denote distinctive national products. This proposal is also an outgrowth of one of the commitments made by the United States, in the Exchange of Letters of July 26, 1983 with the Commission of the European Communities, to work within the regulatory framework of 27 CFR Part 4, to prevent erosion of non-generic designations of geographic significance. For practical reasons it is being proposed that only "examples" of non-generic designations be listed in Part 4 while a complete list of all non-generic designations be listed in a new Part 12.

Abstract: ATF is proposing to amend the regulations by requiring the mandatory disclosure of FD & C Yellow No. 6 on labels of alcoholic beverages, because of evidence indicating the possibility of allergic-type reactions to the color additive. As in the case of FD & C Yellow No. 5, which also requires label disclosure under existing regulations FD & C Yellow No. 6 is used infrequently in the production of alcoholic beverages being limited to mostly cocktails, liqueurs, and other specialty products.

Semiannual Agenda of Regulatory Actions

AGENCY: Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, Treasury.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda of regulations.

SUMMARY: As required by the Regulatory Flexibility Act and Executive Order 12291, the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (Office) has prepared this semiannual agenda of its rules and regulations currently under review and scheduled for review. Regulatory actions taken since the publication of the Office's previous semiannual agenda on October 24, 1988 (53 FR 42328) are also included. It is expected that this semiannual agenda will enable the public to be more aware of, and allow it to more effectively participate in, the Office's regulatory activity.

ADDRESS: The mailing address for all contacts: Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, 490 L'Enfant Plaza East, SW., Washington, DC 20219.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: For general information about this semiannual agenda, contact Nancy Lowther, Financial Analyst, Legislative and Regulatory Analysis Division, (202) 447-1177.

For additional information about a particular item on this semiannual agenda, contact the individual identified as the contact person.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: The Office has determined that none of the rulemakings discussed in this semiannual agenda requires a regulatory flexibility analysis; all entries have been determined not to have a "significant impact on a substantial number of small entities," and therefore are not subject to the provisions of the Act. Additionally, none of the rules is a "major" rule as defined by Executive Order 12291. Executive Order 12291 defines a "major" rule as one likely to result in:

(1) An annual effect on the economy of $100 million or more;

(2) A major increase in costs or prices for consumers, individual industries, Federal, State, or local government agencies, or geographic regions; or

(3) Significant adverse effects on competition, employment, investment, productivity, innovation, or on the ability of United States-based enterprises to compete with foreign-based enterprises in domestic or export markets.

Dated: February 21, 1989.

Legal Authority: Sec 1, 77 Stat 668; 12 USC 92a; 12 USC 481

Abstract: Comments in response to a prior rulemaking Final Rule Docket No. 80-18 (46 FR 71571) published October 29, 1980 included recommendations that additional amendments should be made to 12 CFR 9. The OCC believes that the issues raised by the commenters can best be addressed through a comprehensive review of its regulations concerning national bank fiduciary powers and collective investment funds. The OCC requested comments from the public as to the desirability and

Legal Authority: 12 USC 84(b)(1); 12 USC 84(d)(1); 12 USC 93a

CFR Citation: 12 CFR 32.2(d)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking will revise the definition of a "contractual commitment to advance funds" in response to comments received on the Temporary Rule on National Bank Lending Limits, at 53 FR 23752 (June 24, 1988). Comments were generally in favor of the temporary rule, but expressed concern about its impact on banks which had not experienced a decline in capital. This proposed revision will address those concerns through an amendment to the definition of a "contractual commitment to advance funds." This action should benefit banks, returning to them some flexibility in monitoring their lending limits and outstanding loan commitments. The effect on small entities will be considered in the development of this rulemaking.

Legal Authority: 5 USC 301; 12 USC 481; 5 USC 552(b)(8)

CFR Citation: 12 CFR 4.19; 12 CFR 4.18(c); 12 CFR 7.6025(c); 12 CFR 4.18(a); 12 CFR 4.18(b)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule governs the release by the OCC of confidential documents, especially reports of examination, and testimony for use in litigation in which the OCC is not a party. The OCC is considering changing the rule to spell out the exact requirements for a request for such release, and the situations under which release might be authorized. The effect on small entities will be considered in the development of this rulemaking.

2124. SECURITIES EXCHANGE ACT DISCLOSURE RULES

Legal Authority: 15 USC 78

CFR Citation: 12 CFR 11, (New Subsection)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The proposed rule would require that more detailed and meaningful information be provided to shareholders and the OCC concerning banks' loan portfolios, including loans to borrowers in foreign countries experiencing liquidity problems, other sources of income and exposure to risks. This will assist shareholders in evaluating proposals for mergers, consolidations, acquisitions and similar matters and will assist the OCC in administering and enforcing the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 as it applies to national banks. The OCC considered not proposing the additional amendments or proposing them as a general guide rather than a rule. However, the OCC determined it was appropriate to propose the additional requirements as amendments to Part 11 because the OCC believes the proposed requirements will help to clarify the types of disclosures which the OCC, shareholders and the public would consider material in analyzing various Exchange Act filings and statements. The proposed rule will also include amendments to update Part 11 to conform with recent amendments by the Securities and Exchange Commission to its Securities Exchange Act Disclosure Rules. Legal Authority: 12 USC 1818; 12 USC 93a

CFR Citation: 12 CFR 16

Abstract: This regulation contains the OCC's disclosure requirements for securities offerings by national banks. The OCC is considering revisions which would clarify the coverage of the rule, specify the OCC's enforcement authority in connection with the rule, liberalize nonpublic offering requirements, provide for more meaningful disclosure requirements in public offerings, revise financial information requirements to be more consistent with 12 CFR 11, and where practicable, incorporate by reference provisions of 12 CFR 11. Abstract: This proposed regulation implements recent amendments to the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA). The amendments concern Exemption 7 of the FOIA (relating to law enforcement records) and the provisions of the FOIA concerning fees and fee waivers. In addition, the proposed regulation implements Executive Order 12600, which deals with predisclosure notification procedures for confidential commercial information. This proposed regulation also makes technical changes to the OCC's existing FOIA regulation. The proposed regulation, and the OCC's FOIA regulations in general, affect public disclosure of information by the OCC. Legal Authority: 12 USC 24; 12 USC 92a

CFR Citation: 12 CFR 12.7

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rulemaking would broaden an exemption from requirements that banks maintain certain records and establish certain written policies and procedures. Under the proposal, the current exemption for banks with an average of less than 200 securities transactions per year is expanded to 1,000 transactions per year. The purpose of broadening the exemption from 200 transactions per year to 1,000 transactions per year is to reduce the regulatory burden on small banks.

2135. RULES, POLICIES, AND PROCEDURES FOR CORPORATE ACTIVITIES

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 12 USC 93a

CFR Citation: 12 CFR 5

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The OCC is engaged in a continuing review of its rules, policies, and procedures governing corporate activities. The OCC proposes to provide clarification of the OCC's ability to impose conditions on transactions between a bank and its subsidiaries; to add 12 CFR 5.36 to require notification to the OCC of certain equity investments which national banks are authorized by statute to make; to outline the responsibility of the applicants for accurate and complete filings; to centralize the OCC's distribution of forms; and to make several miscellaneous technical amendments. These proposals are expected to benefit the OCC by assisting the OCC in fulfilling its responsibility for maintaining the safety and soundness of national banks and the national banking system, and to improve OCC efficiency. The effect on small entities is considered in the development of each rulemaking. If adopted as final rules, the changes to Part 5 will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities.

Abstract: This regulation revises the two criminal referral forms, raises the threshold for filing criminal referrals where no suspect has been identified, and clarifies the filing requirement as far as reporting financial crimes where no loss is incurred by the bank, such as money laundering, bank bribery, and Bank Secrecy Act violations. These revisions are intended to clarify the filing requirement for these reports and will tend to reduce the overall number of criminal referral reports to be filed by national banks. Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 12 USC 93a; 12 USC 161; 12 USC 1818; 12 USC 3907; 12 USC 3909

CFR Citation: 12 CFR 3

Abstract: The OCC is amending 12 CFR Part 3 by adopting an Appendix A thereto which contains risk-based capital guidelines. The OCC's current capital regulations provide a disincentive to national banks holding low risk assets, because the same amount of capital is required to be held against those assets that must be maintained against a highly risky and high yielding asset. Furthermore, the current capital regulations, which are based on total assets, do not take account of a bank's off-balance sheet activities. The effect of the risk-based capital guidelines will be to individualize bank capital requirements by tying them to the riskiness of a particular bank's assets and off-balance sheet activities. This rulemaking will not have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities.

Abstract: The OCC is amending 12 CFR 1 to make two nonsubstantive changes in the regulation. The first change in the regulation incorporates the existing statutory authority of national banks to underwrite and deal in obligations of the African Development Bank and the Inter-American Investment Corporation. The second change deletes from the regulation an outdated and unnecessary provision describing procedures for banks to request OCC rulings. Legal Authority: 12 USC 481; 12 USC 482; 12 USC 3102; 26 DC Code 102

Abstract: The OCC is revising the semiannual assessment schedule for national banks, District of Columbia banks, and federally licensed branches and agencies of foreign banks. The revised schedule replaces the current schedule for assessments due by January 31, 1989, and beyond. Assessments are increased by 14 percent. This revision is necessary due to a predicted revenue shortfall which results from decreased revenue growth and increased supervisory responsibilities brought on by the increasing complexity of the financial services industry and the deteriorated condition of many national banks. This action will permit the OCC to continue to fulfill its statutory responsibilities. This final rule will not have a significant impact on a substantial number of small entities.

19 CFR Ch. I

Semiannual Agenda

AGENCY: Customs Service, Treasury.

ACTION: Semiannual agenda.

SUMMARY: In response to Pub. L. 96-354, the "Regulatory Flexibility Act," and Executive Order 12291, "Federal Regulations," Customs has prepared and is publishing for public information a list of regulations either under development or under review.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: For additional information regarding the substance of any particular regulatory project described in the agenda, please communicate with the person identified as the "Agency Contact." All agency contact persons are located at U.S. Customs Service Headquarters, the address of which is noted below. Comments or inquiries of a general nature about the agenda itself should be directed to Harold Singer, Regulations and Disclosure Law Branch, Office of Regulations and Rulings, Headquarters, U.S. Customs Service, Room 2119, 1301 Constitution Avenue, NW., Washington, DC 20229 (202-566-8237).

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

Background

Public Law 96-354, the "Regulatory Flexibility Act" (RFA) and Executive Order (E.O.) 12291 of February 17, 1981, "Federal Regulations," require semiannual publication, in April and October of each year, or an agenda of regulations which are "likely to have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities" and "major" regulations, respectively. The RFA and E.O. 12291 also require agencies to include in their agendas currently effective rules which are under agency review. Customs agenda includes a brief abstract of each regulatory project ("project") being considered, an indication of whether the project will have an RFA impact, the section(s) of the Code of Federal Regulations affected, the legal authority for the action being taken, the name, title, and telephone number of an agency contact and, where applicable, an approximate timetable of completing action on any project for which Customs has published a notice of proposed rulemaking. In addition, the status of projects referred to in previously published agendas is shown. It has been determined that none of the projects listed as being under development meets the standards required of a "major" regulation provided in E.O. 12291.

VOL 54 ISS 77 AP 24 1989 UMI

General statutory authority for the development or review of regulations relating to Customs matters is found in section 301, title 5, United States Code (5 U.S.C. 301), and in sections 66 and 1624, title 19, United States Code (19 U.S.C. 66, 1624). When appropriate, additional specific statutory authority is indicated as the legal authority for the project.

Dated: March 13, 1989.

Director, Office of Regulations and Rulings.

Abstract: Amendment to the Customs Regulations relating to the requirement that every imported article of foreign origin, or its container, shall be legibly and conspicuously marked to indicate to an ultimate purchaser in the U.S., the English name of the country of origin of the article. Proposal would require that whenever the full or abbreviated name of a country or place other than the country of origin, or a symbol readily associated with a country or place other than the country of origin appears anywhere on a foreign article or its container, then the actual country of origin of the article must be marked on the article or its container in close proximity to each reference to the country or place not the country of origin, or a hang tag or sticker affixed to a highly conspicuous portion of the article.

CFR Citation: 19 CFR 134

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Amendment to the Customs Regulations relating to the country of origin marking of jewelry. More permanent methods of marking are proposed to avoid removal of country of origin identifications from jewelry, particularly Native American style jewelry, after importation, but before sale to consumers often for the purpose of deceptively representing the merchandise as made in the U.S. The proposed rule will limit the permanent marking requirement to the smallest practicable portion of imported jewelry that will ensure that imported jewelry is permanently identified with the country of origin. For jewelry covered under the proposed rule, previous methods permitting country of origin marking for jewelry using adhesive labels or string tags would be permitted only where the size of the article does not permit more permanent marking methods. For other articles, the changes will require that jewelry be indelibly marked with the country of origin by cutting, die-sinking, engraving, stamping, or some other equally permanent methods, or with a similarly marked plastic or metal tag.

Additional Information: A proposed interpretive rule was published on July 15, 1986 (51 FR 25574) soliciting comments on a proposal to require that all foreign-made Native American-style jewelry be indelibly marked with the country of origin by cutting, die-sinking, engraving, stamping, or with a similarly marked plastic or metal tag. In response to the notice, 92 written comments were received. Thirty-five of the comments supported the proposal that all foreign-made Native American-style jewelry be permanently marked with the country of origin; 42 favored the permanent marking of all foreign-made silver jewelry; 11 commenters said that all foreign-made jewelry should be permanently marked; and one commenter favored permanent marking of all imported gold and silver jewelry. On August 23, 1988, Congress enacted PL 100-418, which, among other things, requires the indelible and permanent marking on all imported Native American-style jewelry. The final rule will implement this law, taking into consideration public comments on the revised proposal concerning ways in which the type of jewelry subject to permanent marking might be reduced while accomplishing the statutory objective.

Abstract: Amendment to the Customs Regulations to set forth revised special informal entry procedures applicable to the entry and clearance of cargo carried by the various entities which comprise the express consignment industry and to further refine and expand upon the existing procedures which recognize the special needs of the growing express consignment industry. The member countries of the Customs Cooperation Council have recently examined the industry and associated issues and have adopted international guidelines which established various definitions, including the term "Express Consignment Operators or Carriers." The overwhelming growth of this industry requires Customs to provide more expedited clearance procedures. The amendments will promote uniform, fair and consistent treatment of the various courier and express air services, while at the same time better assuring the protection of the revenue in accord with all applicable laws and regulations.

Abstract: The Tax Reform Act of 1986 provides for a new method of computing the tax on distributions of income accumulated by a trust in prior years. The new method, in effect, determines the tax attributable to an accumulation distribution by averaging the distribution over the number of years during which the income was earned by the trust. This is accomplished by including, for purposes of tentative computations, a fraction of the income received from the trust in the beneficiaries' income for 3 of the 5 preceding years. Those 3 years are determined by taking from the 5 preceding years the year with the highest taxable income and the year with the lowest. The fraction of the income included in each of the 3 years is based upon the number of years during which the income is accumulated by the trust. The average yearly additional tax determined by recomputing the tax for the 3 years is then multiplied by the number of years during which the distribution was accumulated. The resulting tax so computed may be offset by a credit for any taxes previously paid by the trust with respect to the accumulated income. (Cont)

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1

Abstract: The Tax Reform Act of 1986 eliminates the requirement that there be a mirrored system of taxation in Guam and the CNMI, and coordinates the tax system of these possessions and of American Samoa with the U.S. tax system. Guam the CNMI and American Samoa are granted full authority over their own local income tax systems, with respect to income of bona fide residents sourced within or effectively connected with the conduct of a trade or business within any of these possessions. This grant of authority is effective, however, only if and so long as an implementing agreement is in effect between the possession at issue and the United States which provides for elimination of double taxation, prevention of evasion or avoidance of U.S. tax exchange of information and other administrative matters. Regulations are needed to clarify who qualifies as a bona fide resident and to determine sourcing rules.

the dividend is paid after affiliation is broken. However, the subsidiary's value is reduced by its obligation to pay the dividend. Hence, the selling member could claim an unwarranted reduction in gain or increase in loss on the sale of the subsidiary. This regulation will alleviate this problem by deeming the dividend to have been made immediately before the disposition. Accordingly, the appropriate basis adjustments should be made.

The exception does allow preparers of returns and refund claims for nonresident aliens to use facsimile signatures under certain circumstances. Section 645 (a) of the Internal Revenue Code, added by section 1403 (a) of the Tax Reform Act of 1986, requires trusts, with certain limited exceptions, to use a calendar taxable year. The calendar year requirement means that, instead of being able to spread their duty to sign trust returns over the entire course of a year, preparers must now sign all trust returns before April 15 in order to present them to clients for timely filing. To alleviate this hardship, we are examining the advisability of permitting income tax return preparers of Forms 1041, U.S. Fiduciary Income Tax Returns, to use facsimile signatures and under what conditions such use would be permitted and appropriate.

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986; 26 USC 7425 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 301

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 301.7425-4(b)(3)(ii), which deals with excess expenses incurred by a purchaser of property after a foreclosure sale and before redemption, provides that the Service may request a written itemized statement from the purchaser regarding excess expenses with 15 days, it shall be presumed that no excess expenses are payable. However, even after the 15-day period expires, a payment for excess expenses shall be made after the redemption within a reasonable time following the verification by the district director of a written itemized statement submitted by the purchaser. There is no specific time frame set for the purchaser to submit his claim after the redemption and after the expiration of the 15-day period. We are examining the feasibility of establishing a 30-day time limit within which a final claim for excess expenses must be submitted by the purchaser after the sale of the property. This will eliminate claims for reimbursement of expenses that may be submitted after redemption and sale of the property, where the liens were fully satisfied and released, and all surplus funds returned to the taxpayer.

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7429 Internal Revenue Code of 1986 PL 100-647, Sec 6237; 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1.7429

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 7429 currently provides for administrative and judicial review of jeopardy assessments, but these review procedures do not apply to jeopardy levies. The Technical and Miscellaneous Revenue Act of 1988, PL 100-647, Sec. 6237, extends the review procedures of Section 7429 to the review of jeopardy levies and provides concurrent jurisdiction to the Tax Court with Federal District courts with respect to actions challenging a jeopardy assessment or jeopardy levy, provided a Tax Court petition is filed prior to the making of the assessment or levy. We are examining whether any regulations need to be promulgated under the statutory amendment. In particular, we are examining whether any procedural guidelines for the filing of actions in the Tax Court are needed by means of regulations, or whether revision to Tax Court rules is more appropriate. We are also examining whether the revised review procedures contain any ambiguity for which clarification by way of regulation would be helpful.

Legal Authority: PL 100-647, Sec 6240; 26 USC 7432

CFR Citation: Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The new section 7432 grants taxpayers the right to bring a cause of action for damages in Federal District court if any officer or employee of the Internal Revenue Service knowingly or negligently fails to release a lien under section 6325 on property of the taxpayer. Damages will not be awarded for failure to release a lien unless the court determines that the taxpayer has exhausted all administrative remedies within the Internal Revenue Service. The Secretary must provide by regulations a reasonable procedure for the taxpayer to notify the Service of a failure to release a lien on property of the taxpayer. Currently, we are considering regulations that will provide procedures for a taxpayer to notify the Service of a failure to release a lien and procedures for administrative exhaustion of remedies.

This provision allows taxpayers to sue the Internal Revenue Service to recover economic damages if a Service employee, in connection with the collection of a tax, recklessly or intentionally disregards any provision of the Code or regulations. The new implementing regulation will establish administrative remedies for taxpayers to meet the statutory requirement that administrative remedies be exhausted prior to a court award of damages. The regulations will address the use of the tables, which will be published separately, and will contain rules for making an election where charitable transfers are involved. Abstract: Section 7605(a) of the Internal Revenue Code, 26 USC 7605(a), and section 301.7605-1(a) of the regulations currently provide the time and place of an examination shall be fixed by an officer or employee of the Internal Revenue Service and shall be reasonable under the circumstances. No regulations have been promulgated elaborating on this provision. The Taxpayer Bill of Rights requires the publication within one year of regulations enumerating standards for determining whether the selection of a time and place for interviewing a taxpayer is reasonable. These regulations are to provide that if it is generally not reasonable for the IRS to require a taxpayer to attend an examination at an IRS office within the assigned district other than the office located closest to the taxpayer's home. They will also provide it is generally not reasonable for the IRS to audit a taxpayer at his or her place of business if the business is so small that doing so will essentially require the taxpayer to close his business.

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986; 26 USC 362 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Except as provided in regulations, sections 382 (b) (3) (A) and (d) (1) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986 provide for a ratable allocation of income or net operating loss, respectively, for the taxable year that includes the change date. Notice 87-79, 1987-2 C.B. 387, states that regulations will, in certain cases, provide taxpayers with an election to allocate income and loss between the periods ending with and after the change date on the basis of a closing of their books as of the change date (rather than on the basis of a ratable allocation). The notice also states that the regulations, in appropriate circumstances, will permit income that is realized after the date, but is properly attributable to the period ending with the change date, to be allocated to the pre-change period. The purpose of this regulation project is to provide guidance in the areas suggested by the notice and in related areas.

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Prior to the Tax Reform Act of 1986 importers could claim a transfer price for customs purposes that was too low to be consistent with the price they claim for income tax purposes. Section 1248 of the Tax Reform Act of 1986 addressed this problem by enacting Section 1059A of the Internal Revenue Code, under which importers cannot claim a transfer price for income tax purposes that is higher than would be consistent with the value they claim for customs purposes. Regulations will be needed to provide rules for coordinating customs and tax valuation principles. It is anticipated that as a result of Section 1059A of the Internal Revenue Code, some taxpayers will claim higher transfer prices for customs purposes. No estimate has been made of the revenue.

2581. CONSOLIDATED INVESTMENT CREDIT RECAPTURE

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986; 26 USC 1502 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1.1502-3(f)(2)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 47 (a) (1) of the Internal Revenue Code and the regulations thereunder provide the general rule that if section 38 property is disposed of there shall be recapture of investment credit. Section 1.1502-3 (f) (2) provides an exception to that rule for the transfer of section 38 property between members of an affiliated group; such a transfer will not cause a disposition within the meaning of section 47 (a) (1). This exception is premised on treating the affiliated group, for investment tax credit purposes, as a single entity that continues to own the property after the transfer. Such a premise is not justified, and the exception does not apply, if at the time of the transfer there is an intent that the property subsequently leave the group in a transaction described in section 1.1502-13 (f). See Rev. Rul. 82-20, 1982-1 CB 6. In such a case, recapture is appropriate. The regulation will amend section 1.1502-3 (f) (2) to make this explicit.

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986; 26 USC 1502 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1.1502-32(T).

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: When a subsidiary declares a dividend while a member of a consolidated group, but pays the dividend after disaffiliation from the consolidated group, the basis of the subsidiary's stock is not reduced by the amount of the dividend. The problem is caused by a difference in timing of the two events in (payment of dividend and declaration of dividend) and its effect on earnings and profits and basis. This regulation will alleviate the problem by providing that basis of the subsidiary's stock will be reduced when the subsidiary declares a dividend.

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986; 26 USC 1503(d) Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1

Abstract: If a U.S. Corporation is subject to a foreign country's tax on worldwide income, or on a residence basis as opposed to a source basis, any taxable loss it incurs cannot reduce the taxable income of any other member of a U.S. affiliated group for any other taxable year. Where a corporation is subject to foreign tax on a residence basis, then for U.S. purposes, its loss will be available to offset income of that corporation in other years, but not income of another U.S. Corporation. Regulations may exempt a U.S. corporation from this rule to the extent that its losses do not offset the income of foreign corporations for foreign tax purposes.

The term "commodity" does not include a security, regulated futures contract, forward contract, or a form of tangible personal property if the gross proceeds from its sale exceed by more than 15 percent its value as a commodity. The rules proposed include alternative methods (the "exact" and "approximate" methods) of tangible personal property valuation.

2657. TRANSFER OF INTANGIBLES SUBJECT TO SECTION 367 OR 482 OF THE CODE

Legal Authority: 26 USC 7805 Internal Revenue Code of 1986

CFR Citation: 26 CFR 1

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Prior to the Reform Act of 1986, U.S. taxpayers were able to shift income out of the U.S. by transferring intangibles to Section 936 possessions corporations, contributing intangibles to related foreign corporations in Section 367 transactions or selling or licensing intangibles to related foreign parties at less than arm's-length prices and transactions subject to section 482. Valuing such transfers (at the time of transfer) has proven to be difficult and non-productive. The Reform Act of 1986 provides that payments to be received by the transferor of intangibles must be commensurate with the income from the intangible. Major issue - What portion of the income from the intangible will constitute "commensurate"? Provisions will raise large amounts of revenue.

DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS (VA)

DEPARTMENT OF VETERANS AFFAIRS

38 CFR Ch. I

Agenda of Federal Regulations

AGENCY: Department of Veterans Affairs.

ACTION: Publication of agenda of regulations.

SUMMARY: This agenda announces the regulations that the Department of Veterans Affairs will have under review, development, or revision during the 12-month period from April 1989 to April 1990. The purpose in publishing this Agency's regulatory development activities is to allow all interested persons the opportunity to participate in the rulemaking process.

ADDRESSES: Interested persons are invited to comment on the regulations listed in the agenda by contacting the individual agency contact listed for each regulation, or by writing to: Paperwork Management and Regulations Service (731), Department of Veterans Affairs, 810 Vermont Avenue, NW., Washington, DC 20420.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: 38 CFR: M'Liz McLendon, (202) 233-3770; 48 CFR, Chapter 8: Sunny Huff, (202) 233-4240.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Executive Order 12291, Federal Regulation, and the Regulatory Flexibility Act (Pub. L. 96-354) require that executive agencies publish in the Federal Register in April and October of each year an agenda of regulations under development and review.

The Department of Veterans Affairs has no regulations considered major under the terms of Executive Order 12291; however, all of this Agency's proposed rules and current rules under review, except those considered to be internal agency policy management or routine regulations, have been listed in accordance with section 5(a) of the Executive Order.

This agenda incorporates those categories of information required pursuant to 5 U.S.C. 602(a) and 610(c) of the Regulatory Flexibility Act.

Because of printing deadlines, the regulatory agenda submission of the Veterans Administration was completed prior to March 15, 1989, the effective date of the redesignation of the Veterans Administration as the Department of Veterans Affairs in the Executive Branch of Government. Therefore, this preamble was approved at the direction of the Acting Administrator of the Veterans Administration; however, nomenclature and titles in this agenda reflect the redesignations.

This agenda has been prepared in accordance with OMB Bulletin 89-02.

Dated: February 21, 1989.
By direction of the Acting Administrator.
Linda M. Combs,
Acting Associate Deputy Administrator for Management.

2696. GRANTS TO STATES FOR STATE EXTENDED CARE FACILITIES

Legal Authority: 38 USC 5031 to 5037; PL 100-322

CFR Citation: 38 CFR 17.170 to 17.177

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Pub. L. 100-322 changed the date of the priority list for applications from July 1 to August 15. The Secretary is provided authority to conditionally award construction grants. If a state does not complete requirements within 90 days after conditional approval, funds will be deobligated. These proposed regulations will implement that change. Construction standards in 38 CFR 17.177 are being totally reformatted, revised and updated. The veteran population in 38 CFR 17.171 Appendix A is being updated to reflect the current information. Additionally, provisions are being established to handle large grant requests where one project may exceed the annual appropriation. Requests for projects exceeding one-half the annual appropriation will receive lower priority on the list and may be partially funded if funds are available, the project ranks high enough on the priority list for Federal funds, and the State accepts a smaller grant.

Abstract: 38 USC 3305 prohibits the Agency from designating any Quality Assurance (QA) program activity, for the purpose of confidentiality, unless such activity has been specified in regulation. Final regulations implementing 38 USC 3305 were made effective October 22, 1982. Those regulations govern the Agency's QA program activities and records and documents which are made confidential and privileged. Proposed rules amending 38 CFR 17.500-17.534 were issued in the Federal Register on October 27, 1988, and the public comment period ended November 38, 1988. One commenter suggested a change to those regulations that could not be accepted by the Agency without public comment. Therefore, the Agency is proposing to reorganize the description of the continuous monitoring functions, streamline programmatic QA requirements for the medical facilities and update requirements according to new standards.

Abstract: The definition of fraud, except for forfeiture purposes, is being placed in the general definitions section and includes acts of omission as well as acts of commission. This action will allow a finding of fraud in certain cases where a beneficiary receives or retains benefits based on a knowing failure to provide necessary information. This is a new proposal based on comments the agency received on its original proposal under RIN 2900-AC01.

Abstract: Under current provisions, use of the Vocational Rehabilitation Panel is required in certain instances. The role of the Panel is to assist in helping seriously disabled veterans successfully pursue a rehabilitation program. The requirement for consultation was a sound policy when the vocational rehabilitation program was substantially revised and broadened in 1980. As staff have gained experience with the new policies which resulted from the revision of the rehabilitation program in 1980, the need for consultation in every case has decreased. Current field experience indicates that placing use of the Panel on a discretionary basis is in the interest of the veteran and the government.

Abstract: Federally appointed fiduciaries are not required, except under very specific circumstances, to divulge non-Agency income and assets belonging to the incompetent beneficiary. It is difficult to assess whether the fiduciary is using the beneficiary's Agency assets appropriately unless placed in the context of total income and assets available. The purpose of these changes is to lessen the potential for fraud, waste and abuse. 38 CFR 13.58(b)(2) and 13.59(a) detail the responsibilities of legal custodians and court-appointed guardians respectively. They would be amended to require the reporting of non-Agency assets. 38 CFR 13.100(a)(1) defines the authority of the Veterans Services Officer to supervise fiduciaries. The intended change would permit the Veterans Services Officer to request non-Agency financial information from fiduciaries. 38 CFR 13.102(b) and 13.104(b) define the accountability of legal custodians and court-appointed guardians respectively. The intended change requires disclosure of non-Agency financial information.

Abstract: Regulations will be amended to implement the new requirements for payment of claims. Under the new formulas, the Agency will exclude from the guaranty claim payment the interest which accrues during periods of forbearance granted at the Agency's request, and when the veteran files for bankruptcy. As a result, we expect that a number of cases which would result in the lender being required to dispose of the property will instead result in the Agency acquiring the property and paying a smaller claim. The adjustment in an Agency-requested forbearance or bankruptcy situation will only be made if doing so will result in the Agency offering to acquire the property when the property would otherwise not be acquired by the Agency. In cases where VA is at fault for the delay in foreclosure, for example, a failure to provide bidding instructions in a timely manner, the Agency will also exclude from the calculation as to whether or not the Agency will acquire the property interest which accrues during the period of delay, but will allow such interest in the computation of the guaranty claim.

Legal Authority: 38 USC 1621; 38 USC 1631

Abstract: The law requires that generally, an individual must contribute to the Post-Vietnam Education Assistance Program (VEAP) fund for 12 months in order to receive educational assistance. So as to encourage participation by servicemembers, the Agency has permitted a servicemember who meets all the other eligibility requirements to receive educational assistance after he or she has completed 3 months of contributions to the fund or has made a lump-sum payment which is the equivalent of at least 3 months' contributions to the fund. In order to comply with the law it has been the Agency's policy to require these servicemembers to establish a continuing allotment so that they eventually will contribute to the fund for 12 months. However, the regulation which mentions the 3 months' contributions does not mention the 12 months' participation requirement. This has led to instances where servicemembers who have been paid educational assistance, never participated for 12 months. The Agency wishes to amend the regulation to correct this.

Abstract: The Agency currently pays annuities to approximately 150,000 individuals under all of its insurance programs. Of these, almost 1,500 are calculated using male/female differentiated mortality tables. Gender-differentiated mortality tables provide for lower monthly payments to female annuitants. Under this proposal, we will discontinue using female annuity tables and all new annuity awards will be based on existing male tables. All currently running female annuity payments will be raised to the male annuity payment amount, on a prospective basis.

Legal Authority: 38 USC 706; 38 USC 744

CFR Citation: 38 CFR 8.211, (New); 38 CFR 8.119, (New)

Abstract: Under current procedures, State appointed fiduciaries may perform insurance transactions, e.g., apply for coverage or reinstate a policy, on behalf of incapacitated veterans. The ability of a fiduciary to perform a particular transaction is dependent on the authority granted to the fiduciary by State law. Such authority varies from State to State. Because of this, before any insurance transaction can be completed it must first be determined whether the fiduciary is authorized by State law to conduct the particular transaction. This entails referring the matter to a District Counsel for review. This process is time consuming and delays rendering service to our policyholders. In order to alleviate this problem and to establish a consistent approach regarding the powers of State-appointed fiduciaries, as well as federally appointed fiduciaries as they pertain to government life insurance transactions only, we are proposing regulations which will clarify and enunciate such powers.

Legal Authority: 20 USC 1681 et seq; 38 USC 210(a); EO 12250; EO 12067

Abstract: To establish standards and procedures for enforcing Title IX of the Education Amendments of 1972 in educational programs and activities receiving Federal financial assistance from the VA. Title IX prohibits discrimination on the basis of sex. There are no alternatives to the issuance of the regulations. Participants, potential participants and the public in general will benefit from Federally assisted programs provided free from prohibited discrimination based on sex.

This originally appeared as a proposed rule in the Federal Register of April 25, 1979 (44 FR 24320). Because of the extended time frame due to internal agency consultation with the Department of Justice, the Agency is planning to repropose these regulations.

Abstract: To incorporate a reference to the Uniform Federal Accessibility Standards (UFAS) and update the list of Federal financial assistance programs administered by the Agency. The existing regulations require that new construction and alteration of facilities be made in an accessible manner. The regulations provide that new construction or alteration of facilities in conformance with the American National Standard Specifications for Making Building and Facilities Accessible to, and Usable by, the Physically Handicapped (ANSI A117.1-1961 (B 1971)) shall constitute compliance with the accessibility requirements for new construction and alteration of facilities. The proposed revision will replace the current standard with the UFAS, published under the Architectural Barriers Act of 1968. Because some facilities subject to the accessibility requirements of section 504 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 are also subject to the accessibility requirements of the Architectural Barriers Act, this proposal would eliminate any potential conflict between standards enforced under the two statutes.

Abstract: Final regulations implementing 38 USC 3305 were made effective Oct. 22, 1982. Those regulations govern the Agency's QA (quality assurance) program activities and records and documents which are made confidential and privileged. Sec. 3305 prohibits the Agency from designating any QA program activity, for the purpose of confidentiality, unless such activity has been specified in regulation. Pub. L. 99-166 amends 38 USC 4151 and 4152 to require that QA program activities include and evaluation of the quality of surgical care in the Agency, as evidenced by outcome measures of mortality and morbidity; a report to Congress indicating deficiencies in the quality of care is required. 38 USC 3305 was amended to clarify that aggregate statistical data is not to be made confidential provided individuals are not identified. The existing regulations do not include a description of the Agency Medical District Initiated Peer Review Organization (MEDIPRO) program which is an integral element of the quality assurance program. No alternatives are being considered. There are no potential costs to the action. The benefits would be in the form of programmatic improvements.

Abstract: The Agency has determined that employment assistance may be provided a veteran eligible for Chapter 31, if the veteran though trained and qualified for suitable employment, has an employment handicap that prevents him or her from obtaining such employment, even if he or she is not a prior participant in a vocational rehabilitation program. It has previously been held that eligibility for employment services was limited to veterans who were current or prior participants under Chapter 31.

Legal Authority: 38 USC 210; 38 USC 3202; 38 USC 3203; PL 98-543, Sec 402

CFR Citation: 38 CFR 13.70; 38 CFR 13.71; 38 CFR 13.74

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: 38 CFR 13.70 defines the conditions under which the Veterans Services Officer may recommend an apportionment of benefits to dependents. The proposed amendment will clarify these conditions. The amendment will also remove a reference to mental illness as the sole criteria for a rating of incompetency.

38 CFR 13.71 is to be amended to make clear that the signing of an institutional award agreement does not waive an institution's right to claim payments under 38 USC 641. This action is the result of an unpublished General Counsel opinion.

38 CFR 13.74 is based on the provisions of 38 USC Sec. 3203(b) (1)(A); however, where the law refers to more than one type of institutional care, the regulation refers only to instances of hospitalization. This would seem to preclude application of the regulation when veterans are in State run nursing homes or other institutions operated by the United States or a political subdivision. The Department of Veterans Affairs, therefore, proposes to correct this defect by substituting the terms "institution" and "institutionalization" where appropriate.

Legal Authority: 38 USC 111; 38 USC 1506

CFR Citation: 38 CFR 21.100; 38 CFR 21.376

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: An initial evaluation is provided each veteran requesting assistance under the vocational rehabilitation program. The purpose of the initial evaluation is to determine eligibility and entitlement to vocational rehabilitation and plan a program of vocational rehabilitation for eligible veterans. The initial evaluation is provided by Agency counseling psychologists in the United States. Since interpersonal discussion is the essence of counseling, providing an initial evaluation to a veteran residing overseas by an Agency counselor located in this country poses logistical and other problems. We are proposing that current regulations be amended to allow for greater flexibility in providing initial evaluations to veterans not residing in a state, including those veterans residing overseas. The alternatives to the present system include, but are not limited to contracting with qualified counseling staff located in the area in which the veteran resides, to conduct a part of the evaluation. All decisions as to eligibility for services would continue to be made by Agency staff.

Abstract: The Agency is amending the existing regulations concerning Agency lists of names and addresses and is also proposing administrative procedures to use when these lists are used for purposes not authorized by law. The proposed regulatory amendments will allow the Agency to enforce its statutory duty to protect the privacy of information concerning veterans and their dependents, establish procedures to suspend recipients who misuse Agency name and address lists of veterans/dependents, and give advance notice to recipients of what constitutes an authorized/unauthorized use of veterans/ dependents names and address lists, thereby protecting the due process rights of any recipient before penalties are enforced.

2809. FREEDOM OF INFORMATION ACT REGULATIONS

Legal Authority: 16 USC 470 Nat. Historic Preservation Act of 1966, as amended

CFR Citation: 36 CFR 810.5

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The regulation will increase the fees charged to requesters of information to better reflect the cost to the Government of locating and copying the documents requested. Copying charges would be increased from $0.10 to $0.13 per page; fees for searches by professional staff from $2.00 to $4.65 per quarter hour; and fees for searches by clerical staff from $1.00 to $2.30 per quarter hour. The regulation would thus impose a "user's fee" to users of the Government FOIA system which is more consistent with other agencies' fees.

AGENCY: U.S. Commission on Civil Rights.

ACTION: Publication of semiannual agenda.

SUMMARY: This agenda announces the regulations the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights will have under development during the 6-month period from April 1, 1989 through September 30, 1989. The purpose for publishing this agenda is to give notice of any regulatory activity by the Commission in order to allow the public an opportunity to participate in the rulemaking process.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT:

General: For further information on the agenda in general, contact: William H. Gillers, Solicitor, U.S. Commission on Civil Rights, 1121 Vermont Ave., NW., Room 606, Washington, DC 20425, (202) 376-8514.

Specific: For further information about any particular item on the agenda, contact the individual listed under that item.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: In accordance with Executive Order 12291, Federal Regulation, and the Regulatory Flexibility Act (5 U.S.C. 605), executive agencies are required to publish in the Federal Register semiannual regulatory agendas in April and October of each year.

The regulations being considered by the Commission are not "major" rules within the meaning of E.O. 12291 and no Regulatory Impact Analysis is required. The Commission has determined that the regulations under consideration will not impose compliance costs or reporting burdens on the public; nor will the regulations have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities. Accordingly, no Regulatory Analysis is required.

Organization of the Agenda

The agenda is organized by statute, and in several cases it combines regulations with differing statutory authorities that have closely-related subject matter. For example, the Asbestos-in-Schools Inspection, Abatement, and Disposal regulation is written under AHERA, but appears with regulations under TSCA.

Within each statutory listing, the regulations are ordered numerically, by section number of the authorizing legislation. For example, all RCRA regulations under section 3001 appear before those under section 3006.

Within each statutory area the entries are further divided into four categories: (1) Prerule Stage; (2) Proposed Rule Stage; (3) Final Rule Stage; and (4) Completed Actions (regulations that EPA is deleting from the agenda because the Agency has completed, withdrawn, or postponed them indefinitely). Detailed information on each of these sections is presented below.

I. Prerulemakings

Prerulemaking actions include activities intended to determine whether or how to initiate rulemaking. These activities include anything that influences or leads to rulemaking, such as advance notices of proposed rulemaking, significant studies or analyses of the possible need for regulatory action, requests for public comment on the need for regulatory action, or important pre-regulatory policy proposals.

This section also includes existing EPA regulations that are now under review. The purpose of such reviews is to determine whether the Agency should revise the rule, rescind it, or leave it unchanged. When finished, the Agency will list these reviews in the completed section of the agenda. If EPA decides to revise or rescind the regulation, the action will appear in the proposed rule section of the next agenda, which will state the timetable for completing the revision or rescission.

For each regulation under review, the agenda provides the title, a short abstract, legal authority, CFR reference, any analysis EPA is preparing, contact person, and the schedule for completing the review. It also indicates the "review authority," which may be different from the regulation's statutory authority. EPA reviews regulations under various mandates, and some reviews satisfy more than one of these mandates. The principal mandates are:

Executive Order 12498 is intended to outline the Administration's annual Regulatory Program. It defines priority activities that federal departments and agencies will work on during the upcoming year. Its purpose is to minimize duplication and conflict among regulatory activities and enhance public understanding of the Administration's regulatory objectives.

Executive Order 12291 establishes the general policy that federal departments and agencies should review their regulations to ensure that the costs of the regulations are justified by their benefits. The Office of Management and Budget (OMB) reviews agency rules to assess their compliance with the Executive Order's goals of maximizing net social benefits.

The Regulatory Flexibility Act (RFA) requires that federal departments and agencies review existing regulations that have a significant economic impact on a substantial number of small entities, including small businesses, small organizations, and small governments, at least once every ten years. EPA invites public comment regarding RFA issues on the list of regulations EPA is reviewing.

Reviews EPA has targeted under the RFA are identified by a "Yes" in the "small entity" category. This year the agenda also identifies the type of entity affected (businesses, governmental jurisdictions, or organizations). Also identified is whether the regulatory action affects State, Local, or Federal governments. These changes will enable organizations representing local governments to make greater use of the agenda.

When the Agency completes reviews of regulations with a significant impact on small entities, the agenda includes an abstract that announces the Agency's decision of whether to revise, rescind, or leave the regulation unchanged. This announcement complies with the RFA and EPA's July 16, 1981 plan (46 FR 36930) for reviewing regulations under the Act.

The Paperwork Reduction Act (PRA) requires federal departments and agencies to review their information collection activities to assure that they need and will use the information and manage it efficiently. They must also ensure that the information to be collected is of high quality, appropriate for its intended use, and does not already exist at some other federal agency. In addition, the PRA requires agencies to review the cost of collecting the information, so that it will be held to a minimum for both the respondent and the agencies. Congress gave oversight authority to OMB. EPA must have OMB approval before it either collects information or requires that information be collected.

II. Proposed and Final Rules

This section includes all "significant" EPA regulations. Some are priority regulations under development that are subject to Executive Order 12498 or that the Agency has designated for priority development or revision. These regulations are also subject to certain provisions of E.O. 12291, RFA, and PRA.

EPA generally lists regulations in this category of the agenda once they are within a year of proposal or promulgation. Very important regulations under development will usually appear even if the scheduled publication dates are more than a year away.

Proposed and final rules appear as: (a) Actions that will create new CFR parts, subparts, or subsections. The word "revision" will appear in subsections; or (b) actions that revise or amend already existing CFR parts, subparts, or subsections. The word "revision" will appear in parentheses after the title of each regulation undergoing revision. All regulations appearing in the agenda for the first time are marked with bullets (●).

However, the listings exclude: (a) Specialized categories of actions (such as EPA approvals of State plans and other actions that do not apply nationally); and (b) routine actions (such as pesticide tolerances and minor amendments to existing rules).

For each proposed and final regulation, the agenda includes:
- Title
- Priority classification (if applicable)
- Legal authority
- CFR reference
- Legal deadline (if applicable)
- Short abstract
- Timetable of existing and scheduled actions
- Reference to small entity impacts (yes, no, or undetermined)
- Additional information (includes the FTS phone number for the Agency contact, the Start Action Request (SAR) number, which is assigned to the regulation for internal tracking purposes, and any other information that is not included in the abstract)
- Agency contact
- Analysis section (if the Agency is preparing a Regulatory Impact Analysis (RIA) and/or an analysis under the RFA)

III. Completed Actions

These are actions that appeared in the last agenda, which EPA is deleting because they are completed or are no longer under consideration. Information on these regulations and reviews of regulations is less detailed than for those that are still under consideration. Generally, entries include: (1) An explanation of why the Agency is deleting the regulation from the agenda, or (2) the publication date and Federal Register citation of the final rule.

Dated: February 24, 1989.

Robert H. Wayland, III,

Deputy Assistant Administrator for Policy, Planning and Evaluation.

ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY (EPA) —Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA)

Proposed Rule Stage

2819. ● PESTICIDE REGULATIONS FOR PESTICIDAL TRANSGENIC PLANTS (REVISION)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 7 USC 136 /FIFRA 2: 7 USC 136a /FIFRA 3; 7 USC 136W /FIFRA 25; 7 USC 136c /FIFRA 5

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 152.20

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: EPA will consider the need for an amendment to clarify that chemical pesticides produced by transgenic plants are not associated with a plant considered to be biological pest control agents and, therefore, may not be exempt from the provisions of FIFRA (the existing section 152.20 exempts from FIFRA regulation all plants that may be used as biological pest control agents). Instead, chemical pesticides produced by transgenic plants may receive regulatory oversight similar to that which is already in place for chemical pesticide products that are produced and applied by conventional means. The need for this regulation and its development will be coordinated with USDA/APHIS and other agencies, as appropriate.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 7 USC 136a /FIFRA 3; 7 USC 136d /FIFRA 6; 7 USC 136w /FIFRA 25

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 152.170

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule will provide a scheme for identifying pesticides which may pose an unacceptable hazard because of the potential to leach into groundwater. The Agency will propose criteria for classifying such pesticides for restricted use. Restricted use pesticides generally may be applied only by state certified applicators.

Legal Authority: 7 USC 136a/FIFRA 3; 7 USC 136w/FIFRA 25; 7 USC 136d/FIFRA 6

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 158.640

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The objective in revising the regulations is to further define the Agency's requirement for pesticide producers to submit qualitative/quantitative data on the field quality performance of their pesticides or alternative non-chemical practices. These data will be incorporated into the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act (FIFRA). It is also expected that companion revised guidelines will provide protocols and methodologies for conducting the studies necessary to produce acceptable comparative performance data. Registrants may experience very minor cost increases to support registration of pesticide products. The benefits should be substantial in the form of better and more uniform data on pesticide product performance, for use by Agency analysts. Additionally, since testing of this nature is already conducted widely, improvements in protocols, methodologies, and standardization should benefit the regulated community as well.

Legal Authority: 7 USC 136b /FIFRA 4: 7 USC 136j /FIFRA 12; 7 USC 136w /FIFRA 25

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 171.12

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action is intended to develop regulations to allow the sale of restricted use pesticides to persons who are not certified under special circumstances as set forth by Congress in 1978. Regulatory development will be coordinated with the review of state plans under FIFRA Section 4 to determine both need and compatibility with State authorities and programs.

2825. AMENDMENTS TO EXPERIMENTAL USE PERMIT RULE FOR CERTAIN MICROBIAL PESTICIDES (REVISION)

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 7 USC 136 /FIFRA 4

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 172

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: EPA proposes to amend its experimental use permit regulations for pesticides to clarify the circumstances under which an experimental use permit is presumed not to be required and to specify that the presumption is based on risk. EPA also proposes to require notification before initiation of small-scale testing of certain genetically modified microbial pesticides. Each notification will be reviewed by the Agency, and a determination made as to whether an experimental use permit will be required. Environmental Bioassay Committees approved by EPA may participate in the review process. This notification scheme would implement provisions of the Agency's policy statement of June 26, 1986 (51 FR 23302), with some modifications, and is intended to provide sufficient oversight of the early testing of these microbial pesticides to mitigate any adverse human health or environmental effects.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 21 USC 346a/FFDCA 408; 21 USC 348/FFDCA 409

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 180

Abstract: This regulation will set forth procedures for which food additive tolerances, required by section 409 of the Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act (FFDCA), may be established, modified or revoked. The proposal also covers procedural rules governing the filing of objections, requests for hearings and hearing procedures. In the second phase, which will overlap the first, the Agency plans to develop a unified regulation that will deal with the substantive interpretations and criteria for deciding when tolerances or food additive regulations are needed, what data are needed to support a tolerance or food additive regulation and what criteria assumptions will be used by EPA to determine whether a tolerance or food additive regulation should be established, modified, or revoked.

Legal Authority: 7 USC 136d/FIFRA 6

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 153

Abstract: FIFRA Section 6(a)(2) requires that registrants report to EPA additional factual information regarding unreasonable adverse effects of their products. In September 1985, EPA revised its 1979 section 6(a)(2) enforcement policy by publishing a notice which expanded upon the types of factual information which must be reported and established uniform timeframes for compliance. In response to comments received on this notice, the Agency is revising it to clarify the types of information which registrants must report to EPA.

Legal Authority: 15 USC 2605/TSCA 6

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 7

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Scrap metal recycling industry processing, distribution in commerce, and disposal activities are resulting in some releases of PCBs (and other hazardous substances such as lead) at levels exceeding current regulatory controls. The problem may affect all media (air, land, and water) and several hazardous materials and therefore will be best addressed by a broad mandate to evaluate the environmental regulatory options using cost/benefit analysis. The objective of the proposed rulemaking is twofold: 1) to provide relief to the shredding industry by proposing to authorize PCB-related activities that do not present unreasonable risks, and 2) to consider mechanisms under TSCA for reducing risks posed by other materials.

An RIA and an RFA would not be statutorily required for this regulation because the rule would grant relief from the Toxic Substances Control Act (TSCA) processing, distributions in commerce and disposal requirements rather than impose addi- tional burdens on the regulated community. Nevertheless, we do plan to assess the economic impact of any proposed actions on industry, particularly small businesses, as part of our unreasonable risk analysis for TSCA.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 11013/SARA 0313

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 372

Abstract: This action proposes to add ten chemicals to the list of toxic chemicals under Section 313 of SARA. The addition of nine of these substances is based on concerns for carcinogenicity and chronic toxicity as reflected in determinations made under Section 102 of the Comprehensive Environmental Response Compensation, and Liability Act of 1980 (CERCLA). EPA believes that these chemicals meet the criteria for addition to the list of toxic substances as established in Section 313(d)(2). EPA is also proposing a modification to include

Abstract: The following table lists chemicals for which EPA will initiate rulemaking to require testing, obtain testing through negotiated consent orders, or publish a notice which provides the reasons for not doing so. The list includes chemicals which have been designated for priority testing consideration by the Interagency Testing Committee as well as those chemicals (i.e., recommended and non-designated chemicals) for which the 12-month statutory requirement does not apply. The list also includes chemicals or categories of chemicals which have been identified for testing consideration by other EPA program offices and through EPA review processes.

2842. CHEMICAL SPECIFIC SIGNIFICANT NEW USE RULES TO EXTEND PROVISIONS OF SECTION 5(E) ORDERS

Legal Authority: 15 USC 2604 /TSCA 5

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 721

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: When the Agency determines that in the absence of adequate safety data, the uncontrolled manufacture, import, processing, distribution, use or disposal of a PMN substance may present an unreasonable risk, it may issue a proposed order under section 5(e) to limit the aforementioned activities. However, section 5(e) orders apply only to the PMN submitter. Once the substance is placed on the TSCA chemical inventory, other persons are free to manufacture, import, or process the substance without controls. Therefore, EPA by rule, designates manufacture, import, or processing of the substances for use without the specified controls as a significant new use. These SNURs ensure that the original submitter is not at a competitive disadvantage and that no uncontrolled activities will occur without an opportunity for prior Agency review.

2843. GENERIC SIGNIFICANT NEW USE RULE FOR ACRYLATE COMPOUNDS

Legal Authority: 15 USC 2694 /TSCA 5

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 721

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The generic acrylate significant new use rule may require any person who proposes to manufacture, import, or process an acrylate/methacrylate subject to the category definition contained within the proposed rule to notify EPA at least 90 days in advance of the initiation of a significant new use. The significant new use rule will apply to a subset of acrylates and methacrylates added to the inventory after the effective date of the rule. It will no longer be necessary to issue routine 5(e) orders or chemical specific SNURs for those acrylates covered by the rule.

2844. RULEMAKING CONCERNING CERTAIN MICROBIAL PRODUCTS ("BIOTECHNOLOGY")

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 15 USC 2604 /TSCA 5; 15 USC 2607 /TSCA 8

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 704; 40 CFR 720; 40 CFR 721

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Under the authority of the Toxic Substances Control Act, the agency is proposing two separate regulatory actions for manufacturers, importers, and processors of certain microbial products of biotechnology. Under section 5, the Agency is proposing to amend its definition of "small quantities solely for research and development" contained in the Premanufacture Notification (PMN) Rule, thereby requiring persons to submit notices prior to testing new microorganisms in the environment. This amendment will require reporting for new microorganisms and will establish a special notification mechanism for experimental releases of microorganisms. EPA also is proposing significant new use notification requirements under section 5(a)(2), which would ensure that EPA will receive for review, notices of large scale releases of other microorganisms developed for significant new uses, and will review small-scale environmental releases, possibly with assistance from environmental biosafety committees (EBCs), peer review committees to be sponsored by researchers and accredited by EPA. Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 15 USC 1504/TSCA 5

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 723

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Under the authority of the Toxic Substances Control Act, the Agency will propose to exempt from review new microorganisms used in certain contained systems. The Agency considers it a priority to exempt from consideration organisms that can be shown to meet the statutory requirements under section 5(h)(4) of TSCA. To meet those requirements, it must be shown that the substances will not present unreasonable risks. EPA is considering public comment received and other evidence concerning use of microorganisms in closed systems and other controlled environments to determine whether those categories satisfy the requirements of section 5(h)(4) of TSCA.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 15 USC 2605 / TSCA 6; 15 USC 2608 / TSCA 9

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 765

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: As described in the Federal Register on May 23, 1984, the Agency has been investigating regulatory options for the reduction of three categories of exposure to formaldehyde: 1) residents exposed to formaldehyde emissions from wood products used in the construction of manufactured homes; 2) similarly exposed residents of conventional homes; 3) apparel manufacture employees exposed to formaldehyde released from treated fabrics. Because OSHA proposed a standard in December 1985 that applies to all occupational exposure, EPA has terminated its investigation with respect to apparel manufacturing employees. Investigation of risks from exposure to formaldehyde emissions from wood products is being conducted in consultation with HUD and CPSC. This investigation may lead to the initiation of various control alternatives, including section 9 referral to other agencies and/ or section 6 regulations.

2847. REGULATORY INVESTIGATION OF CHLORINATED SOLVENTS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 15 USC 2605 / TSCA 6; 15 USC 2608 / TSCA 9

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 754

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: EPA, in consultation with the Consumer Product Safety Commission, Occupational Safety and Health Administration, and Food and Drug Administration, is developing a comprehensive and integrated strategy for a regulatory investigation of methylene chloride and five other chlorinated solvents. In some cases, these chlorinated solvents are competitive and can be easily substituted for each other in a number of uses. The integrated effort is being conducted to reach general agreement on the risks associated with the solvents and to avoid ineffective risk management actions that may occur due to solvent switching or pollutant transfer among media which could be caused by piecemeal regulation. Data are being gathered for six solvents (methylene chloride, perchloroethylene, trichloroethylene, methyl chloroform, carbon tetrachloride, and CFC-113) and their potential substitutes. This regulatory investigation is focused on three major use categories: metal cleaning, paint stripping, and aerosol application. The investigation will determine whether coordinated regulatory controls are needed to eliminate or reduce exposure to these solvents.

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 455

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, December 31, 1986.
Date contained in Water Quality Act of 1987

Abstract: On October 4, 1985 the EPA promulgated a final regulation establishing BAT, NSPS, PSES, PSNS for the pesticide industry under the Clean Water Act. On July 25, 1986 the final regulation was remanded to the EPA by the Eleventh Circuit Court of Appeals in response to a joint motion filed by the Agency and other parties to litigation challenging the regulation. EPA removed the BAT, NSPS, PSNS, and PSES pesticide regulation from the Code of Federal Regulations at the direction of the Court, and informed the public that the regulation is no longer effective (December 15, 1986; 51 FR 44911). The Agency intends to establish new effluent limitation guidelines and standards for the pesticide manufacturers and formulators/packagers industry in a future rulemaking. The BCT limitations published on April 25, 1978 and September 29, 1978, are still effective.

Abstract: EPA will review existing effluent guidelines and promulgate new effluent guidelines to implement section 304(m) of the CWA, as added by the 1987 Water Quality Act (Public Law 100-4). Existing industrial categories or subcategories for which BAT effluent limitations and guidelines and NSPS have already been promulgated that EPA is currently reviewing as potential candidates for revised guidelines include: Copper Forming (40 CFR 468); Timber Products Processing (40 CFR 429); Textile Manufacturing (40 CFR 410); Pharmaceuticals Manufacturing (40 CFR 416); and Organic Chemicals Plastics and Synthetic Fibers (40 CFR 414), (reserved priority pollutants and nonconventional pollutants). EPA may revise the list of candidates as appropriate. Moreover, if and when EPA decides to initiate rulemaking for any of the candidates, it will identify the industrial category in subsequent Federal Register notices pursuant to section 304(m). Industrial categories and subcategories discharging toxic and nonconventional pollutants for which BAT effluent

ABSTRACT CONT: for BAT effluent guidelines and NSPS. Most of these candidates were selected for review because of the Domestic Sewage Study (Report to Congress on the Discharge of Hazardous Wastes to Publicly Owned Treatment Works, U.S. EPA, Office of Water Regulations and Standards, EPA 530-SW-86-004, February 1986, prepared by EPA pursuant to the mandate of section 3018(a) of RCRA to evaluate the impact of RCRA hazardous wastes discharged to POTWs). The industrial candidates currently being examined are: hazardous waste treaters; solvent recyclers; machinery manufacturing and rebuilding; transportation; paint manufacture and formulation (40 CFR 446); industrial laundries; hospitals (40 CFR 460); waste oil refiners; and drum reconditioners; and the onshore and coastal subcategories of oil and gas extraction (40 CFR 435). If the Agency decides that rulemaking is appropriate for these or other industrial point source candidates, it will publish schedules in the Federal Register.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6924 /RCRA 3004

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 148

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, October 26, 1988.

Abstract: The Agency is required to prohibit injection of hazardous wastes under sections 3004(f) and (g) by specified deadlines unless (1) the facility demonstrates no migration through a petition or (2) the facility treats the waste to specified levels which reduce the threat to human health. The Administrator may grant variance variances for up to two years where treatment capacity is unavailable. This rule proposes effective dates for additional first thirds wastes. It also proposes to grant capacity variances for some of those wastes and extends the statutory prohibitions for two years.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 2201/AEA 161

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 191

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On August 15, 1985, the Agency promulgated generally applicable environmental standards for the management and disposal of spent nuclear fuel, high-level and transuranic radioactive wastes. These Standards applied to management and disposal of such materials generated by activities under the jurisdiction of the Department of Energy or regulated by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission. They established limits for the release of radioactive materials to the environment. Subsequent to promulgation of this rule, several petitions for review were filed and consolidated in the U.S. Court of Appeals for the First Circuit. As of September 23, 1987 the Court vacated and remanded Subpart B of the Standards to the Agency for revision consistent with its ruling.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 300 /SDWA 1412

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 141; 40 CFR 142

Legal Deadline: Final, Judicial, June 19, 1989.

Abstract: EPA plans to establish regulations specifying criteria that States will use to determine which surface water systems will be required to install filtration. The regulations will also address performance criteria for filtration systems. The criteria will include disinfection requirements. The regulations will constitute NPDWRs for Giardia, viruses, and other pathogens. The Agency will also set MCLGs for certain microbiological contaminants.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 33 USC 1251 /CWA 311(j)(1)(c)

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 112

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Following a major oil spill with substantial environmental impacts, an interagency task force reviewed the adequacy of regulations concerning the prevention and control of oil spills. The task force recommended a significant upgrade to the Oil Pollution Prevention Regulation and an inventory of the regulated community. A two phased regulatory approach is being pursued. In Phase I, widely accepted industry practices that are currently recommended practices in the regulation will be changed to required practices. Also, to facilitate an inventory of facilities subject to the regulation, a provision may be added requiring facilities to notify EPA of their existence. The Phase II regulatory effort will address other recommended modifications.

Abstract: EPA is presently developing a list of "high-volume, low- hazard" ore processing wastes for study under Section 8002(p) of RCRA, in response to an opinion of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit (EDF v. EPA, 852 F.2d 1316 (D.C. Cir. 1988). EPA will then conduct a Section 8002 study of those processing wastes excluded from Subtitle C regulation by the "Bevill Amendment" 3001(b)(3)(A) RCRA. The study will culminate in a Report to Congress in July 1990. RCRA Section 3001(b)(3) requires the Agency, after public hearing and public comment, to determine within six months of submitting the report, whether to regulate any of these wastes under RCRA Subtitle C.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6921 /RCRA 3001; 42 USC 6922 /RCRA 3002

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 261.4(c)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This proposed rule would amend an exemption in 40 CFR 261.4(c) which is currently limited to product or raw material vessels, so that it will apply to all vessels. The result of this change would be that all vessel operators, both product and non-product, would be regulated the same. In both cases, hazardous wastes generated on-board ships would not be subject to the RCRA regulations for storage, manifesting, etc., until the waste is removed from the ship. The discharge of any wastes while underway is governed by regulations issued under the provision of the Clean Water Act, Rivers and Harbors Act, Refuse Act, CERCLA/SARA, and others.

Abstract: This amendment will require those who submit delisting petitions for hazardous wastes to provide ground water monitoring data as part of their petition. Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule will modify the hazardous waste listing F019, wastewater treatment sludges from the chemical conversion coating of aluminum, (40 CFR 261.31). The modification will narrow the scope of the F019 listing to exclude the zirconium phosphating of aluminum cans process because it does not use or form any Appendix VIII constituents in hazardous concentrations. There are approximately 80 facilities employing this process, which is currently within the scope of the F019 listing. This modification to F019 will not exclude facilities engaged in other types of chemical conversion coating of aluminum.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6924 / RCRA 3004; 42 USC 6925/RCRA 3005

Abstract: Burning of hazardous waste in boilers for the purpose of heat recovery is currently exempt from regulation under RCRA. The Hazardous and Solid Waste Amendments of 1984 require the Agency to develop technical standards for the burning of hazardous waste fuels. This regulation will establish standards for controlling emissions of organic compounds, metals, and hydrogen chloride from boilers and industrial furnaces that burn hazardous waste for any purpose, including energy recovery, material recovery, or destruction.

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, May 8, 1987.

Abstract: EPA has proposed these regulations under the authority of section 3004(a) and 3004(o)(4) of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act. The regulations would require: 1) new landfills, surface impoundments, waste piles, and land treatment units for the treatment, storage, or disposal of hazardous wastes to utilize an approved leak detection system; 2) double liners and leachate collection systems for waste piles, and certain landfills and surface impoundments; and 3) development of a construction quality assurance program for certain landfills and surface impoundments, as well as final covers at land treatment units. EPA originally proposed this rule on May 29, 1987 (52 FR 20218); the Agency may repropose the double liner sections of the rule.

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 260; 40 CFR 264; 40 CFR 265; 40 CFR 270

Abstract: Section 3004(o)(7) of RCRA authorizes EPA to promulgate standards for the location of hazardous waste treatment, storage, and disposal facilities. Two existing location standards (floodplain and seismic restrictions) at 40 CFR Part 264.18 will be amended based on new data and information. Additional standards will specify other criteria for the acceptable location of new, expanding, and existing treatment, storage and disposal facilities in a variety of sensitive environments (e.g., unstable terrains, wetlands). The Agency's goals are to enhance the effectiveness of a unit's design and operating controls by avoiding the most sensitive locations, to decrease cleanup and prospective future RCRA Corrective Action and superfund sites, and to more effectively ensure long-term protection of human health and the environment.

Abstract: These regulations will provide alternate closure options for EPA and authorized states to establish closure and post-closure requirements on a site-specific basis. The regulations address waste and site characteristics, potential pathways of hazardous constituent migration, and health effects. These rules allow for cover systems to be designed base on unique site and waste characteristics. EPA originally proposed this rule on March 19, 1987 (52 FR 8712); the Agency will repropose the rule.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6924 /RCRA 3004

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 268

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory.

Abstract: The Agency is investigating the need to set separate treatment standards for soil and debris containing hazardous wastes. By statute, these wastes do not become subject to the Land Disposal Restrictions Rule (51 FR 40572 and 52 FR 25760) for Solvents and Dioxins (RCRA 3004(e)) and the California List (RCRA 3004(d)) until 11/8/88. If necessary, the Agency will further subcategorize the waste streams to provide separate treatment standards applicable to such wastes.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6924 /RCRA 3004

Abstract: Currently, wastewater treatment units and elementary neutralization units are exempt from the requirements in 40 CFR Parts 264, and 265 (see 45FR76074, November 17, 1980). This action will amend the regulations to explain more clearly that thermal treatment units, except sludge dryers, are not exempt from regulation under the "wastewater treatment unit exclusion." It was never EPA's intention that thermal treatment units be exempt from regulation. Rather, specific regulations have been developed for these devices.

Abstract: This amendments will revise financial test criteria that must be satisfied by owners and operators employing the test to demonstrate RCRA financial responsibility requirements. Currently, the test does not function optimally; many financially viable and stable firms cannot pass the test whereas numerous RCRA firms that go bankrupt are able to "pass" the test. The anticipated revisions will adjust test criteria so as to increase availability of this assurance mechanism to viable firms and increase sensitivity to bankruptcy prediction.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6924/RCRA3004

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 260

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The Agency is receiving information on an increasing number of situations where it is difficult to determine whether specific types of hazardous waste management units meet the definition of a tan, pile or surface impoundment. EPA intends to clarify the difference between these units by revising the definitions for these units in 40 CFR 260.1. In particular EPA expects to address the use of liners for primary containment as well as other issues relating to the use of "earthen" and "nonearthen" materials.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6905; 42 USC 6912; 42 USC 6921; 42 USC 6974; 42 USC 6924; 42 USC 6925

Abstract: This regulation will address a petition for rulemaking submitted by the Boeing Company, requesting that EPA amend several hazardous waste tank system requirements as applied to certain existing sumps. A sump, being a type of tank, if used to manage a hazardous waste storage/treatment tank system. The petition focuses on those existing sumps that are situated inside of buildings and constructed as an integral part of the building's floor or foundation. The petitioner argues that because of differences in design, construction, and use, these sumps should be regulated independently of other hazardous waste storage/treatment tank systems. Companies are requesting additional time to bring these sumps into compliance with the hazardous waste tank system standards.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6941 to 6949 /RCRA 4001-4009

CFR Citation: 40 CFR Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Based on the first mining waste Report to Congress submitted 12/31/85, comments on the report, and other available information, EPA has determined that regulation of wastes from the extraction and benefication of ores and minerals under Subtitle C of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA) is not warranted at this time (51 FR 24496). Instead, EPA plans to develop a program for mining waste under Subtitle D of RCRA, working with the States to determine the specific nature of their current mining waste activities and their future plans to administer such programs. EPA will propose a set of criteria for the proper disposal of mining wastes under RCRA Subtitle D authority. EPA will also work with other Federal agencies (e.g., DOI, USGS) to avoid duplication in regulatory efforts.

Abstract: This regulation will establish, under Subtitle I of RCRA (as amended by SARA), requirements for demonstrating financial responsibility for taking corrective action and compensating third parties for bodily injury and property damage caused by releases from underground storage tanks (USTs) containing hazardous substances. An ANPRM was published to help gather data (e.g., frequency of releases from such USTs, costs of corrective action and third-party damages, and the regulated community's financial condition and use of financial assurance mechanisms) needed for the development of a proposed rule.

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 259

Legal Deadline: Other, Statutory, May 30, 1989.
The legal deadline prescribed is for an interim final by May 1989

Abstract: Because of the numerous incidents of public exposure to improperly disposed medical waste Congress passed the Medical Waste Tracking Act of 1988. The Act requires EPA to develop a demonstration tracking program for medical waste in 10 States. The demonstration program sets forth segregation, packaging, labeling, tracking, transportation, and recordkeeping requirements of medical waste generated in the covered States, and lists the wastes to be covered by the program. The emphasis of the tracking program is to assure the generator that the waste is delivered to a proper disposal facility.

Abstract: The EPA is proposing to amend its hazardous waste identification regulations by introducing a new extraction procedure to be used in the Toxicity Characteristic and by expanding the Toxicity Characteristic to include approximately 38 additional organic toxicants. EPA originally proposed this rule on June 13, 1986 (51 FR 21648).

2958. ● FORTY-SEVEN ANALYTICAL METHODS APPROVED FOR SUBTITLE C RCRA HAZARDOUS WASTE TESTING

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6921 /RCRA 3001; 42 USC 6924 /RCRA 3004; 42 USC 6925 /RCRA 3005; 42 USC 6926 /RCRA 3006

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 260.11(a)(Revision); 40 CFR 261,Appendix III, Table 2 (Revision); 40 CFR 261.Appendix III, Table 3 (Revision)

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule promulgates 47 new analytical methods approved for RCRA Subtitle C hazardous waste testing that were originally proposed in 1984. The purpose of this rulemaking is to provide better and more complete test methods for RCRA-related testing. These 47 methods may be used to meet regulatory requirements in conjunction with, or in addition to, the methods found in the Second Edition of SW-846, as amended by Updates I and II. Except where regulations specifically require the use of certain SW-846 test methods or QC procedures, the SW-846 manual is a guidance document and is not mandatory. These 47 methods offer the regulated community in some cases refinements of existing methods that are usually used, and in other cases, new technologies that provide alternative methods to those now available for the analysis of certain analytes or parameters. Therefore, the Agency believes that the economic impact of this rule on the regulatory community will be minimal to none.

Abstract: The Agency has proposed these regulations under the Hazardous and Solid Waste Amendment of 1984. The regulation will 1) minimize the placement of containers holding liquid hazardous waste and free liquids in hazardous waste landfills, 2) minimize the presence of free liquids in containers holding hazardous waste to be disposed of in landfills and 3) prohibit the use of absorbents that biodegrade or release liquids when compressed.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6924 /RCRA 3004

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 264; 40 CFR 270

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action will change the Subpart F ground-water monitoring regulations. The following is a summary of the major changes:

- allow use of site-specific data on contaminant fate and transport for ground-water monitoring variances;

- allow flexibility in well installation requirements when access to waste management boundary is difficult;

- clarify the definition of waste management area and provide flexibility in determining the appropriate monitoring or response programs for individual areas;

- allow flexibility in schedules for submittal of information upon approval by the Regional Administrator (R.A.);

- base the requirement for ground-water flow rate and direction determinations upon site-specific fluctuations in water levels;

- clarify the R.A.'s authority to require monitoring of any flow pathway in the uppermost aquifer and unsaturated zone;

- authority to designate supplemental monitoring wells when justified by complicated monitoring situations; and (see additional information for completion of abstract.)

Legal Authority: 42 USC 6924 /RCRA 3004; 42 USC 6925 /RCRA 3005

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 264; 40 CFR 265

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The current regulations require that closure of a hazardous waste unit begin after the final receipt of hazardous wastes. The proposed rule will identify the circumstances under which a unit that ceases to receive hazardous wastes may continue to accept non-hazardous wastes. Amendments will identify conditions for the subsequent use of a unit for non-hazardous waste management and coordination with other closure activities of a hazardous waste management facility. Portions of the closure requirements (Subpart G) will be amended in both parts 264 and 265. These changes will increase the flexibility in the current regulations.

Abstract: This rule establishes minimum technology requirements (e.g., double liners and leachate collection systems) for new hazardous waste landfills and surface impoundments, as well as lateral expansions and replacements to existing landfills and surface impoundments. This rule will establish standards for these systems enabling unit owners and operators to design and construct systems that will protect human health and the environment.

Abstract: This action responds to a petition submitted to EPA by the Hazardous Waste Treatment Council (HWTC). It will establish state-wide permitting procedures for mobile hazardous waste treatment units, and will modify hazardous waste delisting procedures so that hazardous waste treatment residues could be delisted as part of the permitting process. In addition, the petition response solicited comment on HWTC's request that EPA exempt certain treatment technologies from the requirements for hazardous waste management.

Abstract: This action is the ninth proposed update to the National Priorities List (NPL) for uncontrolled hazardous waste sites (Appendix B of the National Contingency Plan (NCP)). CERCLA requires that the NPL be revised at least annually. Periodic revisions will allow EPA to include sites on the NPL with known or threatened hazardous substances releases and to delete sites that have been cleaned up. EPA uses the Hazard Ranking System (HRS) to evaluate the sites. In this proposed update, the Agency will propose Federal facility sites to the NPL. See the related actions in the proposed and final rule sections of this Agenda.

Abstract: EPA is reassessing health and welfare information which has become available since the last revision of the standard. In order to retain a unified regulatory review package in light of the emerging data base on health and welfare effects associated with longer-term averaging times, EPA is continuing the standard review until such information is published and reviewed in an addendum to the criteria document. The major issue is whether the new information will indicate that new standards with longer-term averaging times are required to protect public health and welfare.

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, August 1982.

Abstract: An NSPS was proposed for this source category in 1980. Subsequently, in 1987, the Agency solicited public participation in information gathering in preparation for a decision on whether to regulate this source category under the NESHAP program, the NSPS program or both. That regulatory decision has been delayed pending a decision on how to respond to the court's decision on vinyl chloride (see benzene reconsideration). This action could affect any manufacturing operations that employ organic solvent cleaners to remove grease and oils from parts prior to assembly.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7411 / CAA 111

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 60

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: An NSPS was proposed for this source category in 1980. Section 111(d) of the CAA provides a mechanism by which EPA can require states to develop emissions standards for existing sources for certain source categories for which NSPS standards have been developed. Subsequently, in 1987, the Agency solicited public participation in information gathering in preparation for a decision on whether to regulate this source category under the NESHAP program, the NSPS program or both. That regulatory decision has been delayed pending a decision on how to respond to the court's decision on vinyl chloride (see benzene reconsideration). EPA—CAA — Prerule Stage

2997. FUEL AND FUEL ADDITIVES: HEALTH AND EMISSIONS EFFECTS TESTING

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7545(e) / CAA 211(e)

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 79; 40 CFR 80

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, August 7, 1978.

Abstract: The CAA requires that testing protocols be developed to address at a minimum, the possible carcinogenic, mutagenic, and teratogenic effects of fuels and fuel additives as well as their effect on emissions and emission control devices. This action would implement protocols for such testing, which would have to be performed prior to: 1) fuel or additive registration, and 2) introduction of the fuel or additive into the marketplace. Fuels and additives already registered or for sale would also have to undergo testing, as provided for by the CAA.

Abstract: The EPA has completed a preliminary assessment of air emissions from municipal waste combustors (MWC). Based on this assessment, EPA has concluded that MWC emissions may reasonably be anticipated to contribute to the endangerment of public health and welfare. As a result, EPA issued a notice in the Federal Register (52 FR 25399) that announces its intent to regulate emissions from new and modified MWC under Section 111(b). Pollutants to be regulated will include one or more designated pollutants (pollutants not regulated under Sections 108-110 or 112) thus invoking Section 111(d) which will require States to develop additional emissions standards for existing MWC based on EPA guidelines.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7412 / CAA 112

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 61 G

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, March 1985.

Abstract: This regulation would control emissions of coke oven emissions, which have been designated as hazardous under section 112. It would require improved maintenance and operation to limit visible emissions from wet-coal-charged coke oven batteries. The standards may apply to charging and leaks from doors, lids, or offtakes for all existing or new sources. Abstract: In response to Section 320 of the Clean Air Act, EPA held the Fourth Conference on Air Quality Modeling in October 1988. Based on input provided to the Agency at or closely following this Conference, the need for additional revisions to EPA's Guideline on Air Quality Models will be evaluated. Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7476/CAA 166

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 52.21; 40 CFR 51.166

Legal Deadline: Final, Statutory, July 1, 1989.

Abstract: The purpose of this action is to prevent significant deterioration of air quality as measured by the new indicator for particulate matter, PM10. The existing PSD program has particulate matter increments based on the original TSP indicator. The EPA has now promulgated a PM10 NAAQS to replace the original TSP-based particulate matter NAAQS. Therefore, EPA is preparing to revise the PSD program by promulgating PM10 increments in accordance with section 166 of the Clean Air Act.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7521 / CAA 202

Abstract: Through this action, EPA will propose more stringent hydro- carbon and CO emission standards for light-duty trucks based upon the belief that very cost-effective hydrocarbon control is available from these vehicles. The proposed standards would be set at levels which could be met by applying currently available passenger car control technology to light trucks.

3019. TRADING AND BANKING OF HEAVY-DUTY ENGINE NOX AND PM EMISSION CREDITS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7521 / CAA 202

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 86

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In March 1985 the EPA promulgated NOx and PM emission standards for heavy-duty vehicles and engines. The rulemaking included a provision for emissions averaging for the final stages of standard implementation in order to mitigate the economic impact of the stringent standards. EPA realized that the averaging mechanism could provide more benefits to manufacturers with a broader product line. In order to address this issue, EPA included in the final package a provision to study the potential for mitigating this uneven distribution of benefits through an emissions credit trading program. The study was expanded to include the concept of 'banking' emissions credits. The study has been completed and made available to the public and a technical workshop was held in January 1987. EPA is analyzing the comments received from the public and from the workshop.

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7521 /CAA 202

Abstract: EPA's current Carbon Monoxide (CO) emission standards are applicable to the 68 to 86 temperature range of the current Federal Test Procedure. Since CO emissions are higher at colder ambient temperatures, and since CO ambient air quality problems occur primarily under ambient temperature conditions less than 68F, EPA is considering the adoption of CO emission standards applicable to a lower temperature range, possibly as low as 20F.

3022. ● REVISIONS TO THE STACK HEIGHT REGULATION

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7411/CAA 123

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 51.100

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Under the Clean Air Act, emission limitations for sources are generally determined on the basis of local, ground-level concentrations of pollutants. In the absence of laws and/or regulations prohibiting such action, a source can lower the local ground-level ambient pollutant concentrations not only by reducing the amount of pollutants it emits into the air, but also by raising the physical height of its stack or using other dispersion techniques. Section 123, which was added to the CAA by the 1977 Amendments, restricts the manner in which techniques for dispersion of pollutants from a source may be considered in setting emission limitations. The EPA promulgated the current stack height regulation on July 8, 1985. On January 22, 1988, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit upheld EPA's regulation except for three provisions which were remanded to the Agency for proceedings consistent with the court's opinion. The purpose of this action is to revise the stack height regulation in accordance with the January 22, 1988 court decision.

The court remanded two grandfathering provisions which allow dispersion credit, including credit for certain stack height increases. The decision also remanded the allowance of dispersion credit for sources with originally designed and constructed merged stacks. The court concluded that exclusion of these groups of sources from the regulation's restrictions was not adequately supported. The EPA is analyzing the court decision to determine whether further support should be offered for the current provisions or whether to revise the regulation to limit or delete these exclusionary provisions. The Agency's regulatory decisions and any rule revisions will be proposed for public comment in the Federal Register before taking final action.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7525 / CAA 206

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 86

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The particulate standards for 1991 and later model year heavy-duty diesel engines may require the use of trap-oxidizers for some vehicles and engines. The existing test procedures do not expressly describe how to deal with emissions and fuel economy effects during trap regeneration. If it turns out that trap oxidizers are necessary to comply with the 1991 particulate standards, the Agency will develop an appropriate test procedure.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7524 /CAA 206

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 86

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action will address the availability of nonconformance penalties (NCPs) and specific upper limits and penalty rates for 1991 through 1994 model year emission standards for heavy-duty vehicles and engines. The availability of NCPs will allow a manufacturer, whose vehicles or engines fail to conform with certain applicable emission standards, but which do not exceed a designated upper limit, to be issued a certificate of conformity upon payment of a monetary penalty. This rule is the third phase of NCP rulemaking. The first, published August 30, 1985 established generic aspects of NCPs. The second, published December 31, 1985, addressed NCPs applicable to 1987 through 1990 model years.

Abstract: Section 169A of the CAA requires that State Implementation Plans (SIPs) contain provisions to remedy existing and prevent future visibility impairment in certain national parks and wilderness areas. In 1980, EPA promulgated guideline regulations for States to follow in developing their SIP revisions (40 CFR 51.300-307). Many States failed to submit adequate visibility SIPs and EPA was sued to force the Agency to promulgate SIPs for such States. EPA entered into a consent decree under which it agreed to promulgate SIPs implementing the requirements of the visibility regulations in States that have not submitted adequate SIPs. This activity was divided into four parts, the first and second of which have been completed. Parts III and IV are being proposed and promulgated according to the schedule shown.

Abstract: The various EPA regulations that govern new construction under the CAA generally apply to "major" new stationary sources of air pollution and "major" modifications of existing sources. They require fugitive emissions to be included in threshold applicability determinations of whether a new source is "major," but only for 30 categories of sources. The purpose of this action is to determine if surface coal mines should be added to the existing list of 30 categories. A companion action will respond to a petition on the more general issue of including fugitive emissions in NSR applicability determinations.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7401 et seq/CAA

CFR Citation: 40 CFR Not applicable

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The EPA is developing a program to address the fact that many areas in the country have not attained the national ambient air quality standards (NAAQS) for ozone and carbon monoxide (CO) by December 31, 1987, the latest date for attainment expressly identified in the Clean Air Act. This notice describes EPA's views about how EPA should interpret the Act so as to bring those areas into attainment, the reasons for that interpretation, and the concrete steps EPA intends to take to implement that interpretation soon and in the long term. The final policy will be an advance notice of how EPA intends, in subsequent rulemakings, to judge the adequacy of State efforts to plan for attainment of the ozone and CO standards.

Abstract: EPA issued a notice of intent to list total chromium or hexavalent chromium under Section 112 (50 FR 24317). EPA is further assessing the public health risks of chromium compounds and investigating emissions of chromium and techniques that are available to control the emissions from identified source categories. Emissions from cooling towers using chromium chemicals in the recirculating water are predominantly hexavalent. EPA analysis has indicated that emissions standards are warranted, and standards have been proposed under Section 6 of TSCA.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7401 /et. seq CAA

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 50; 40 CFR 52

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Since 1977, EPA has allowed States with rural fugitive dust areas (RFDAs) to discount fugitive dust in developing and enforcing a State Implementation Plan(SIP) for attainment and maintenance of the NAAQS for particulate matter (PM). On July 1, 1987, EPA promulgated revisions to its particulate matter National Ambient Air Quality Standards (NAAQS), 52 FR 24634. In this notice, EPA also solicited comments on alternatives for SIP requirements for RFDAs and on the adequacy of the definitions which are used in identifying RFDAs, and the importance of protecting annual versus 24-hour NAAQS (52 FR 24716). The EPA will issue its decision after considering public comments on the alternatives. The EPA will continue its existing fugitive policy and apply it to implementation of the revised particulate standard until a decision is made.

Abstract: EPA addressed the risks to individuals and to populations due to radionuclide emissions to air in rulemaking decisions issued in 1985. This action will reevaluate the NESHAP regulatory decisions for: Department of Energy Facilities, Nuclear Regulatory Commission Licenses, Elemental Phosphorous plants, Radon-222 emissions from uranium mill tailings, Coal-fired boilers, uranium fuel cycle facilities, inactive uranium mill tailings, high-level radio- active waste, and phosphogypsum piles, to insure they are consistent with the recent court decision on the Vinyl Chloride NESHAP.

Abstract: The Agency is considering revisions to the Asbestos NESHAP to enhance enforcement and promote compliance with the standards. The revision would require monitoring and proper operation and maintenance of air pollution control devices used by asbestos milling, manufacturing, and fabricating sources. It also would require additional work practice and recordkeeping provisions for demolition and renovation operations, including asbestos waste disposal.

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 80; 40 CFR 600; 40 CFR 86

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In-use motor vehicle evaporative hydrocarbon emissions greatly exceed their applicable EPA emissions standards. A major reason is that the volatility of commercial gasoline is substantially greater than that of the certification test fuel specified by EPA. On March 22, EPA promulgated a rule limiting the summertime volatility of gasoline. EPA will continue to assess whether additional control of gasoline volatility is cost-effective and reasonable.

3050. SMALL-VOLUME MANUFACTURERS CERTIFICATION PROCEDURE (REVISION)

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7525 / CAA 206

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 86

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This action will result in amended rules to provide for certification of emissions compliance by small-volume manufacturers, including commercial importers importing vehicles into the United States. This action is appropriate to improve the certification regulations and assure compliance with the exhaust emission standards. Current rules for small-volume manufacturers were not specifically intended to apply to conversion of previously manufactured but uncertified configurations. However, increasingly large numbers of manufacturers who import vehicles for resale have applied for EPA certification as an alternative to individual vehicle importation. This will primarily impact businesses involved in importing motor vehicles. The likely impact of these changes will be increased costs to these businesses.

Abstract: The U.S. Court of Appeals for the D.C. Circuit has directed EPA to amend the aftermarket parts certification regulations. There were four specific areas which the Court directed EPA to revisit. EPA was directed to develop better procedures for determining adequate grounds for manufacturer denial of a warranty claim; reconsider inclusion of specialty parts into the certification system; improve the procedure for resolution of warranty cost claims by vehicle manufacturers against certified parts manufacturers; and labeling for certified parts.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 7541 /CAA 207

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 85

Abstract: This action will consider allowing alternative dynamometer specifications for an existing loaded-mode short test approved for use in State and local inspection/maintenance programs in conjunction with the federal emissions performance warranty regulations. The alternative specifications the Agency is considering would allow lower loading, perhaps varying by engine size. Such a change could improve overall test effectiveness for identifying excess in-use emissions and correlation with the Federal Test Procedure.

Abstract: EPA is examining information relevant to a ban on the use of lead in gasoline. The Agency is considering a set of alternatives ranging from no regulatory action to a ban. The Agency recently completed a cooperative study with the U.S. Department of Agriculture to assess the effects of a lead ban on farm equipment. Legal Authority: 42 USC 9612(b) /CERCLA 112(b)

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 305

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: Section 112(b)(2) of CERCLA as amended, provides that a person who has made a claim against the Superfund and is dissatisfied with the award by EPA may request an administrative hearing. Such hearings shall be before an administrative law judge. The purpose of this rule would be to establish procedures for conducting administrative hearings. The procedures of this rule would replace the Arbitration procedures, formerly codified at 40 CFR Part 305, revoked as a result of the amendments to section 112.

Abstract: Under Title III of SARA, EPA has authority to establish thresholds below which facilities do not have to report. In the rule published on October 15, 1987, EPA set reporting thresholds for the first two years of reporting. At the same time, the Agency made a commitment to further evaluate the appropriate level for a permanent threshold. The proposed rule sets forth the proposed permanent threshold for reporting as well as proposed amendments to the sections 302, 304, and 313 final rules.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 9602 /CERCLA 102

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 302

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This rule may propose to designate 232 non-CERCLA extremely hazardous substances (EHS), as defined in Section 302 of SARA Title III, as hazardous substances pursuant to Section 102 of CERCLA. Currently, only releases of those EHSs that are also CERCLA hazardous substances are required to be reported to the National Response Center under CERCLA Section 103. Upon designation, potential confusion concerning the different SARA Title III and CERCLA requirements might be reduced by ensuring consistent procedures for reporting releases of all EHSs.

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 117; 40 CFR 302

Legal Deadline: NPRM, Statutory, December 31, 1986. Final, Statutory, April 30, 1988.

Abstract: In March 1987 the Agency proposed adjusting, where appropriate, the statutory reportable quantities (RQs) for 273 of the hazardous substances identified in Section 101(14) of CERCLA, as amended. Most (269) of these substances were evaluated for potential carcinogenicity. SARA 202 amends CERCLA 306 to require the Department of Transportation (DOT) to list and regulate as hazardous materials all CERCLA hazardous substances. These regulations require that when these materials are shipped in quantities equal to or greater than their RQs, they be identified as hazardous substances on shipping papers and package markings. DOT promulgated this rule with an effective date of July 1, 1987. The DOT has received several inquiries concerning six frequently transported CERCLA hazardous substances that had their RQs proposed to be adjusted upward in the March 16, 1987 rule. EPA has decided to expedite the final RQ adjustments for these six substances to relieve the regulatory burden on industry. In addition, in this final rule EPA will promulgate the RQs for lead and five lead compounds that were proposed in March 2, 1988 (53 FR 6762).

Abstract: EPA is adjusting the statutory one-pound reportable quantity (RQ) for radionuclides pursuant to Section 102 of CERCLA. Radionuclides consist of approximately 1,500 radioactive isotopes whose release represents differing degrees of potential harm to human health and the environment. Abstract: In the May 25, 1983 NPRM (48 FR 23552) that proposed to adjust certain reportable quantities (RQs) for releases of hazardous substances, EPA explained the Agency's interpretation of each of the types of releases exempted by the definition of "federally permitted release" in Section 101(10) of CERCLA. Abstract: This rule interprets and codifies (1) the requirements of Section 121(d)(3) of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act (CERCLA) as amended by the Superfund Amendments and Reauthorization Act of 1986 (SARA) and (2) the revised off-site policy directive (November 13, 1987). Section 121(d)(3) and the directive describe procedures that must be observed when a response action funded under CERCLA or using a CERCLA authority involves off-site transfer of CERCLA wastes. Section 121(d)(3) of SARA specifies that wastes from removal or remedial actions under CERCLA: 1) only be transferred to facilities that are in compliance with Sections 3004 and 3005 of the Resource Conservation and Recovery Act (RCRA), other applicable Federal laws and State laws, and 2) only be transferred to units at hazardous waste land disposal facilities that are not leaking and where releases from other (non-receiving) units at the facility are under a corrective action program.

CERCLA requires that the HRS be amended to assure, to the extent feasible, that it accurately assesses relative risk to public health and the environment. CERCLA specifically requires that the HRS take into consideration natural resource damages that may affect the human food chain as well as potential air contamination. The HRS must also appropriately assess human health risks associated with contamination of surface waters for drinking or recreation.

Abstract: This regulation will establish and govern the procedures for arbitration of small CERCLA 107(a) cost recovery claims pursuant to the authority granted EPA by SARA 122(h)(2). The regulation will provide a voluntary procedure by which EPA and PRPs at a site may agree to submit a cost recovery claim for resolution by arbitration. Arbitration may be used only when the total response costs for the facility concerned do not exceed $500,000, excluding interest. Arbitration is an alternative dispute resolution technique that should provide a faster and less costly method of case resolution than traditional litigation and negotiations.

Abstract: This regulation is being promulgated in response to the requirements established by Section 109(c) of the Superfund Amendments and Reauthorization Act (SARA), codified as CERCLA Section 109(d). This statutory provision authorizes the President to pay an award of up to $10,000 to any individual for information leading to the successful prosecution of any person for a criminal violation of the Comprehensive Environmental Response, Compensation, and Liability Act (CERCLA), as amended. Section 109(d) also requires the President to prescribe by regulation criteria for such an award. On January 23, 1987 by Executive Order No. 12580, the President delegated to the Administrator of EPA the authority to promulgate the within regulation, and thereafter to carry out the Section 109(d) award program. This regulation is being promulgated on an interim-final basis in order to permit the more expeditious protection of the public health and the environment, as directed by Congress for this provision of SARA.

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 373

This section of SARA also requires that: (1) the agencies holding such land provide, at the time of transfer, a covenant warranting that all remedial actions necessary for protection of human health and the environment have been taken; and (2) any additional action found to be necessary after the transfer will be undertaken by the U.S. EPA is not required to develop rules concerning these latter requirements and is not doing so.

Legal Authority: 42 USC 4321

CFR Citation: 40 CFR 6.700

Abstract: This action amends EPA's Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) regulation in 40 CFR Part 6, Subpart C which addresses the environmental review procedures for research and development projects undertaken by EPA's Office of Research and Development (ORD). The purpose of this rulemaking is to develop procedures for categorically excluding classes of ORD actions having no significant impact on the environment. from the requirement to prepare an environmental assessment (EA) or an environmental impact statement (EIS). The rulemaking also clarifies the criteria under which EPA would be required to prepare an EIS. This rulemaking will enable EPA to focus its resources on assessing research and development projects which have the potential to significantly affect the environment. The revisions are consistent with the Council on Environmental Quality's NEPA regulation in 40 CFR Parts 1500-1508.

3111. EARLY RETIREMENT PLANS

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 29 USC 628

CFR Citation: 29 CFR Not yet determined

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The ADEA prohibits discrimination on the basis of age with respect to an employee's compensation, terms, conditions, or privileges of employment. In light of recent amendments to the ADEA and several cases dealing with early retirement, questions have arisen regarding the legality of early retirement plans in general and of specific plans. Since the use of early retirement has expanded greatly in recent years, the Commission deems it appropriate to consider the issuance of regulatory guidance in the area. The ANPRM seeks comment on issues such as voluntariness, plan structuring and eligibility to participate.

3112. POSSIBLE REVISIONS TO INTERPRETATIONS RELATING TO BENEFITS UNDER EMPLOYEE BENEFIT PLANS

Legal Authority: 29 USC 628

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1625.10

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The current interpretive regulations at 29 CFR 1625.10 were framed in 1979. Since that time the ADEA has been amended in a manner that necessitates considering revisions to the regulations, for example, the addition of sec. 4(g) to the Act and the lifting of the age 70 cap. Accordingly, the Commission is requesting public comment to determine whether revisions are necessary and, if so, the nature and scope of any such revision.

3113. UNIFORM GUIDELINES ON EMPLOYEE SELECTION PROCEDURES

Significance: Agency Priority

Legal Authority: 42 USC 2000e et seq Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1607

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: UGESP Recordkeeping Provisions. On March 15, 1983, the Commission voted to review those portions of the recordkeeping provisions of the Guidelines which relate to the maintenance of data necessary to determine adverse impact. Pursuant to that vote, the Commission published in the Federal Register a notice seeking public comment in general and on several specific questions about UGESP recordkeeping. 48 Fed. Reg. 34766 (Aug. 1, 1983). Approximately 45 comments were received. The Commission is currently reviewing the comments and is considering further action. On June 12, 1984, the Commission voted to prepare an NPRM concerning certain UGESP recordkeeping requirements. Prior to publication for comment, co-signatories to UGESP will engage in discussion of recommended changes and other affected agencies will be consulted under EO 12067.

Abstract: The purpose of the proposed amendment to 29 CFR 1627.15 is to give those covered by the ADEA more specific information about what they should do if they wish to seek an exemption from any or all of the ADEA's prohibitions. The advantage is that the establishment of a specific procedure will facilitate the processing of exemption requests.

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 2000e et seq Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964

CFR Citation: 29 CFR 1607

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: On March 15, 1983, the Commission voted to review the recordkeeping portions of the Guidelines. During that review process, several questions arose which pertained to the substantive, non-recordkeeping provisions of the Guidelines. Consequently, the Commission decided to review the substantive portions of the Guidelines. The major substantive areas under review are: 1) the purpose of the Guidelines and whether there is still a need for the Guidelines; 2) the theory of adverse impact and the method of determining when such impact is significant; and 3) how to establish test validity. When the review is completed, the Commission will decide whether any regulatory revisions are needed.

AGENCY: Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA).

ACTION: Semiannual agenda.

SUMMARY: Pursuant to section 5 of Executive Order 12291 ("Federal Regulations") the Federal Emergency Management Agency is publishing its semiannual agenda for FEMA. The agenda lists regulations that will be under development or review during the period April 1, 1989 to March 31, 1990.

ADDRESS: Rules Docket Clerk, Office of General Counsel, Room 840, 500 C Street, SW., Washington, DC 20472.

FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: For general information, contact Susan Kantor Bank, Office of General Counsel, Federal Emergency Management Agency, Washington, DC 20472, (202) 646-3973. For additional information about a specific regulation, contact the person listed as the contact point in the agenda.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: Executive Order 12291, "Federal Regulations," directs each Executive agency to adopt procedures to improve existing and future regulations. Publication of an agenda of significant regulations is called for at least semiannually in order to give the public adequate notice of agency rulemaking activities; also publication of a regulatory flexibility agenda concerning rules likely to have a significant impact on a substantial number of small entities must be published in accordance with 5 U.S.C. 601 et seq.

In fulfillment of requirements imposed by the Executive Order and 5 U.S.C. 601 et seq., this agenda describes current and projected regulations, and regulations which will be under review during the period April 1, 1989 to March 31, 1990. This agenda also contains information on regulations on which action was completed since the last FEMA semiannual agenda published October 24, 1988 at 53 FR 42576.

Public comment on the agenda, including that by State and local governments, is invited and should be submitted to the Rules Docket Clerk.

The agenda is not limited to major or significant rules and contains as much information as possible concerning all FEMA regulations to be published in the next 12 months except for routine flood elevation determinations, listing of eligible communities under the National Flood Insurance Program, listing of suspended communities and similar designations, and organizational and management matters.

Dated: February 28, 1989.

George W. Watson,

Acting General Counsel.

3122. COMPREHENSIVE COOPERATIVE AGREEMENT (CCA) POLICIES, PROCEDURES, AND ASSOCIATED PROGRAMS

Legal Authority: 50 USC 2286; 50 USC 2251; 42 USC 5121; 42 USC 5151; 42 USC 7701; 42 USC 4001; PL 95-224; PL 96-295; PL 99-499; PL 93-288; PL 95-124; PL 90-488; PL 93-234; PL 90-577; EO 12148

CFR Citation: 44 CFR 305; 44 CFR 302; 44 CFR 360; 44 CFR 301; 5 CFR 900

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: The comprehensive aspect of the CCA process itself was not created by legislation or even by regulation; Presidential emphasis on grants consolidation and FEMA policy on integrating programs created the CCA. The cooperative agreement aspect of the CCA process is based on PL 95-224, the Federal Grant and Cooperative Agreement Act of 1977. Cooperative agreements are used when stimulating a public purpose (the multiple programs delivered in each CCA are aimed at stimulating public purposes, primarily civil defense). The Federal Civil Defense Act of 1950, as amended, authorizes the major portion of CCA programs and assistance dollars, and is therefore the major legislative authority underpinning the CCA process. Various Civil Preparedness Guides, primarily CPG 1-38 and CPG 1-3 address the CCA process and associated programs. However, a regulation would provide complete notice to States and interested parties and complete the policy and procedural requirements identified by the Office of General Counsel. Specific quantitative estimates cannot be cited.

3130. FLOOD INSURANCE RATING SYSTEM CHANGES

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 42 USC 4001 et seq; EO 12127

CFR Citation: 44 CFR 61

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: National Flood Insurance Program premium rating system changes under consideration include a community rating system and a system to use revised FIRMs producing higher rates for existing policyholders, subject to a rate cap. The community rating system would be designed to recognize circumstances within local communities that mitigate or exacerbate the flooding risk, such as the inaction of a community in addressing flood problems or the performance of a community that goes beyond minimum NFIP floodplain management requirements. The use of revised FIRMs for existing policyholders would replace the current practice of allowing premium rates for such policyholders to be based on the map in existence at the time of construction so long as the construction met the requirements at that time.

Abstract: Under PL 93-288, the Federal Emergency Management Agency provides financial and technical assistance to States and local governments in their hurricane preparedness planning. Except for some instances, FEMA has provided 100 percent funding to designated States that have high risk hurricane hazard areas for the development of population preparedness and property protection studies. This proposed rulemaking will establish a plan for having States share the cost of these activities. These changes to 44 CFR 300.6 will affect only the hurricane preparedness portion of this rule; the earthquake hazards reduction portion will be revised in a separate concurrent rulemaking effort.

Abstract: Section 544 of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1987 provided a new benefit to National Flood Insurance Program policyholders: Payment for demolition or relocation of an insured structure if it is located "along the shore of a lake or other body of water and is certified by appropriate State or local land use authority to be subject to imminent collapse or subsidence as a result of erosion or undermining caused by waves or currents of water exceeding anticipated cyclical levels." FEMA published interim regulations on this subject on September 23 and November 2, 1988, and commissioned an investigation through the National Academy of Sciences to provide a basis for further regulations.

3158. FIRMR IMPROVEMENT PROJECT

Significance: Regulatory Program

Legal Authority: 40 USC 486(c); 40 USC 751(f)

CFR Citation: 41 CFR 201

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: In response to recommendations by users of the FIRMR to revise the regulation to make it more readable and useful, GSA plans to restructure the FIRMR during the next few years. This restructuring will include: the separation of policies and procedures, the separation of contracting from management and use provisions, the reorganization of FIRMR contracting provisions for consistency with the Federal Acquisition Regulations, and the reorganization of the FIRMR's management and use provisions into a life cycle format. As the final draft of each subchapter is completed, GSA will seek public comment on the subchapter through a notice of proposed rulemaking. Subchapter E, which deals with acquisition, will be completed first and, if possible, issued as a final rule before publication of the entire FIRMR. An advanced notice of proposed rulemaking describing the project was published in the Federal Register in January 1988. The next planned action is a notice of proposed rulemaking for revised FIRMR Part 39. This action will consolidate all FIRMR contracting policies and procedures for acquiring ADP and telecommunications resources into a single part, consistent with the FAR.

Abstract: This project revises the FIRMR to simplify provisions on the use and implementation of Federal automatic data processing and telecommunications standards. It results in major changes in the regulatory coverage and presentation of FIRMR provisions on standards. The intent is to remove redundant and nonregulatory provisions from the FIRMR that may be found in other agency issuances and to reorganize provisions, consistent with the FAR so that users may more readily locate standards provisions relevant to their particular need.

Legal Deadline: None

Abstract: This project revises the FIRMR by codifying certain provisions contained in FIRMR Temporary Regulation 10 regarding the Federal Information Resources Management Reviews Program (triennial reviews). Temporary Regulation 10 describes the policies and procedures for GSA - Federal agencies to follow in carrying out their information resources management review responsibilities under the Paperwork Reduction Act. It also established GSA as the primary agency for collecting, assessing, and reporting on information resources management review results to OMB. This amendment will codify Governmentwide policies for triennial

Abstract: This regulation is being issued to refine GSA's space assignment criteria and to modify and/or clarify certain space-related policies and requirements. It will replace those portions of FPMR Temporary Regulation D-73 dealing with the assignment and utilization of GSA-controlled space.
